

THE SUNBEAM

ENLARGED SERIES.—VOL. IX.]

TORONTO, MARCH 10, 1888.

[No. 3

THE YOUNG NURSE.

The little girl in the picture seems to be carefully waiting on her sick brother though he does not seem to be very sick that need it. I hope my little friends will all learn this blessed art. They may in after years brighten many a sad hour, and nurse, it may be, some loved one, back life.

bids me I have to. But then I go right away by myself and fold my hands, and look up and say, 'O God, please to forgive if I have sinned. Thou knowest I cannot either, and if he eats all the breakfast that is prepared for him, he can't be very sick. There is nothing that so calls forth the sympathies, or cultivates kindness, as waiting on those

THE YOUNG NURSE.

A GOOD EXAMPLE.

A LITTLE girl in India was asked by the mission lady if she bowed to the idol of the house. "Yes," she said, "when mother help myself, because my mother will beat me." What a good lesson this is for a child who is compelled to do anything wrong.