

10. When it appears on notice being taken at the commencement of the session that the Senate will not convene on the date specified in the notice, the Senate shall adjourn until the date specified in the notice, and the Senate shall not be deemed to have adjourned until the date so specified.

10. No change

Not in accordance with practice. Combined with rule 3

11. When it appears on notice being taken at the commencement of the session that the Senate will not convene on the date specified in the notice, the Senate shall adjourn until the date specified in the notice, and the Senate shall not be deemed to have adjourned until the date so specified.

11. When it appears on notice being taken at the commencement of the session that the Senate will not convene on the date specified in the notice, the Senate shall adjourn until the date specified in the notice, and the Senate shall not be deemed to have adjourned until the date so specified.

11. No change

The purpose of rule 3 and 4 are best achieved with such a revision.

12. Whenever the Senate is adjourned for any day, the Senate shall not be deemed to have adjourned until the date specified in the notice, and the Senate shall not be deemed to have adjourned until the date so specified.

12. No change

13. Whenever the Senate is adjourned for any day, the Senate shall not be deemed to have adjourned until the date specified in the notice, and the Senate shall not be deemed to have adjourned until the date so specified.

13. No change

14. Whenever the Senate is adjourned for any day, the Senate shall not be deemed to have adjourned until the date specified in the notice, and the Senate shall not be deemed to have adjourned until the date so specified.

14. No change

When rule 1 and 2 are reproduced together from the Journal of the Senate.