

CHAPTER XXIV.

The Canadian lakes—The exile's love of home—The coloured people in Canada—Rice—The Maid of the Mist—Homespun cloth—A narrow road—A grumbler—New England emigrants—A potato-pit—The winter's wood

pp. 375—390

CHAPTER XXV.

Thoughts for the future—Changes—Too-hard study—Education in Canada—Christmas markets—Winter amusements—Ice-boats—Very cold ice—Oil-springs—Changes on the farm—Growth of Canada—The American climate—Old England again 391—408

 ERRATUM.

On page 8, twelfth and thirteenth lines, for "twenty-five, or, at most, thirty," read, "thirty-five, or, at most, forty," feet, as the height of Atlantic storm-waves.

LII

Boy-dream
Canada
Our pa
storm—
A fossil
bergs—
Gulf of Sailing u

I WONDER
to travel?
an hour t
see, and o
Books of reading fo
always th
Crusoe," I
story? I Arab read father's te wished to mantic wa