HAMILTON HAPPENINGS

LIBERAL SPEAKERS WERE AT VARIANCE

Mackenzie King's Statements Did Not Jibe With Those of Major McLaren.

HAMILTON, Sept. 15.—(Special.)—The long looked-for jubilation meeting of the local Liberals took place to-night in Association Hal, when Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King and Mayor McLaren and John Peeble, the Liberal candidates for the two Hamilton ridings, addressed a large crowd, about half of which was composed of Conservatives. Mr. King made a very able address from a Liberal standpoint, but in admitting that the tariff changes would affect agricultural implements and a few other articles, he thoughtlessly contradicted Major McLaren, who preceded him, and who had emphatically declared that the only manufactured article which would be affected was salt. Candidate Peebles devoted his speechmaking to telling his audience what a good labor man he had always been.

Cecil Arnold of Bullock's Corners was perhaps fatally injured in Dundas late this afternoon when he was struck by a Grand Trunk train. His right leg was broken and his shoulder dislocated, and he was also internally injured. He was brought to this city and taken to the City Hospital, where it is not expected that he will survive the night. The injured man was employed at Doolittle and Wilcox's stone quarry at Dundas.

Wants Holiday Abolished.

The abolition of civic holiday in this city is advocated by L. R. Tobey, who wrote Mayor Lee to-day suggesting that the day be in future set apart for the inspection of the boy scouts of Hamilton and surrounding country, and asking for a grant from the city to enable the boy scouts from Toronto to be brought here next Thanksgiving Day.

The position of superintendent of construction of the transmission lines of the municipal power and lighting plant was this morning given to James Woodman by the board of control. Mr. Woodman has been connected with the Hydro Power Company for several years. The position is worth $150 a month.

That his 18-year-old son was being ruined by use of strong drink, which he could procure without trouble all over the city, was the statement made to Magistrate Jelfs this morning by Henry Voelker, father of Roy Voelker, who was in court, charged with vagrancy. The boy was discharged and sent home with his father.

MATERIAL HELD UP

Porcupine Complains of Delays in Getting in Supplies For Mines.

PORCUPINE, Sept. 14.—(Special.)—Five hundred men in the Dome section are engaged in the work of running and reconstruction. Delays in getting in material, such as machinery, lumber, etc., with which to set more men at work, are complained of. Perhaps the West Dome is the hardest hit in this respect, one car being on the road for two weeks. One main shaft has been pumped out at the Preston East Dome and the work of resampling the shaft starts to-morrow. Core drill was started at the Apex yesterday and the dewatering of No. 1 shaft is now on. If steel could be had now at the big Dome, the stamp mill could be running within 90 days. Delays in filling orders hold up the work.

Weather remains bright and cool. Boat trust was bursted to-day, when the council of Whitney Township took action against the high transportation charges. Chas. Fox.

SUDAN.

According to an official note issued by the ministry of the colonies in Paris, the Turkish Government has been taking advantage of France's other embarrassments to give trouble in the vicinity of Lake Tchad. It appears that the Turks have sent a sort of expedition to Ain-Galakka, a strategic point in the very heart of Borku, only 190 miles from Arada, which the French had captured after severe fighting. The recent appearance of the Turks in Tibesti had already caused a new outbreak of native hostility toward the French, and it is now feared that, however slight the actual authority of Turkey in the region, the mere presence of its soldiers may stimulate a new Islamic fermentation in the Sahara. The French Foreign Ministry has addressed remonstrances to the Porte, insisting that the provisional status quo in Tibesti and Borku must not be disturbed in any way until a commission can meet this call to make a specific delimitation of the Tripolitan territory and the French Sahara.

The Porte has been explicitly told that when this commission convenes at Tripoli the French commissioners will positively refuse to consider the recent military measures taken by Turkey to extend their domination in Central Africa as establishing any rights in favor of Turkey in either Tibesti or Borku.—New York Sun.

"The Light Beer in the Light Bottle"

Is Far Better Than The Government Regulation Requires

The Canadian Government regulation, regarding the brewing of lager, is probably the most exacting in the world.

It calls for a brew of Hops, Malt and Water only. The American Government places no such restrictions on her brewers.

O'Keefe's "Pilsener" not only complies with the Canadian Government regulations—but is brewed of the very finest Hops and Malt, and pure filtered Water.

THE SAD CELESTIAL WEDDING

The Chinese bride and groom find their national wedding festival serious even to sadness, judging from a description given of the ceremony in "China As I Saw It."

"'You would have been amused could you have seen the invitation,' writes Mrs. A. S. Roe, the author. 'A sheet of scarlet paper in a long scarlet and gold envelope. We were told we should answer it either by sending a present or taking one with us to the ceremony.

"Wedding guests usually bring money, either cash or silver; the latter is placed on a table just inside the door, and the former flung down in a corner on the floor. No one goes empty handed to a wedding feast.

"Tsin Li Lien's wedding was held in the mission compound, as both she and the bridegroom are especial proteges of our friends there. To the hum of voices and to the sound of nasal music, the bridal chair, covered with embroidered scarlet silk, was carried in at the gates, and in due course the curtain in front was raised and the bride, a cowed and clumsy figure in magenta-pink garments of wadded silk touched up with scarlet, stepped forth, looking dazed and stupefied.

"But this was quite as it should be. Unless a Chinese bride appears absolutely miserable and dejected, she is thought to be unmaidenly and ill-bred. Her head, moreover, was weighed down by a species of high crown of red and blue and tinsel, ending in a heavy fringe which dangled forlornly in front of her face, hidden already by a silk veil. No wonder she tottered awkwardly into the church, as she was practically blindfolded.

"An elderly female relative acted as mistress of the ceremonies, and piloted her alone till she was finally placed by the side of the bridegroom. He was a short, spare man, with a pinched face, large lips, and a massive forehead, and the appearance of his wedding garments, of some dark-hued silk, was entirely spoilt by a number of scarlet sashes wound round his chest and back, and tied in huge, clumsy bows below the shoulders. These sashes are a sign of popularity—the more friends you have the more sashes you are supposed to wear.

"Instead of the ring ceremony a native custom was adhered to, and a small glass of wine handed first to the bridegroom, who puts it to his lips and secondly to the elderly relative, who made a feint of putting it to the bride's lips also. The performance was gone thru again, only the other way about, first the bride and then the bridegroom. The marriage service over, the happy pair walked miserably out of the church, and now, for the first time in their lives (nominally, if not in reality) they saw each other face to face, but only for a minute or so.

"Two more ceremonies had still to be gone thru. In an adjoining room, seated side by side at a table planted against the scroll-decorated wall, and with their backs to the assembled company, the bride and bridegroom sat disconsolately before basins of syrup, in which boiled eggs peeled of their shells floated uninvitingly. The bride's veil had been removed.

"She sat with downcast head, looking at the eggs, which she was evidently not expected to eat, while the elderly female relative touched the bridegroom on the shoulder and urged him to make haste. He thereupon seized his chopsticks, and placing one of his eggs in a third basin, which he handed to his monitor, he hastily swallowed down the remaining two, sprang up, saluted the guests, and departed.

"A few minutes later the forlorn pair were standing side by side in the room in which the egg rite had been performed, with their backs to the company and their faces to the wall. The master of the ceremonies called each guest by name, and each in turn stepped in, and standing where the bride and bridegroom could see them saluted in Chinese fashion. The bridegroom returned the salute; the bride studied the ground with eyes cast down in sorrow and humility."

A PUNCTURE-PROOF TIRE.

A resident of Havre has recently patented and put into practical use an invention for preventing punctures in pneumatic tires, which he calls "a puncture-proof metal band for pneumatic tires."

The chief feature of the invention is a band of canvas covered with small hexagonal metallic disks. These disks are arranged to fit close one against another, and are riveted to the canvas so as to form a flexible armor. A band of canvas thus prepared is placed in a sheath of rubber. In order to safeguard the tire this sheath is placed between the air tube and the outer cover. In this way puncturing the air chamber becomes impossible, and even cuts in the outer cover are in no way harmful. Experiments have shown that there is considerably less heating of the tire and that resilience is the same.

Different experiments have been made before responsible witnesses to prove that nails, broken glass, etc., cannot cause punctures when the air chamber is thus protected, and the results are reported to the consulate to have been entirely in favor of the invention.

For example, two one-inch nails were driven into the outer cover, and the automobile, with four passengers, was driven five miles before an examination was made. Then the tire was removed and it was found that the air chamber had not been touched by the nails, and that even the armored device had not suffered, the nails having met the quite imperforable steel disks.

DEPOSED SHAH IN FULL FLIGHT.

TEHERAN, Persia, Sept. 12.—The deposed shah, Mohammed Ali Mirza, whose attempt to re-establish himself on the throne has met with many reverses, is reported to be in full flight and to have reached Gumesh Tepe with seven followers. Gumesh Tepe is the port on the Caspian near the Russian border where the ex-shah first landed last July on his adventure against the reigning shah. A large amount of gold captured from the rebel leader, Arshad Ed Dowleh, has been delivered to the Persian treasurer-general.
