THE ARMIES AT SANTIAGO.

Yesterday's news showed that the American front had been extended further north almost to El Caney. The Spaniards have abandoned their strong position at Aguadores on the left flank, but still hold the fortifications near the sea at the port of Aguadores.

At this hour a report has just reached here that Gen. Lawton, aided by fresher regiments, sent him early in the afternoon, had turned the enemy's left, and has troops already in the city, where almost a hand-to-hand encounter is going on in the streets.

General Shafter, however, sent word this afternoon to General. Calixto Garcia that the surrender of the city would not be long delayed.

A conservative estimate by army men, not official, is that the American casualties during yesterday's fighting were nearly, if not quite, a thousand, about 15 per cent. of which were deaths. To-day's casualties on the American side were much fewer, because their troops had been well entrenched the night before.
