The Montreal papers are emitting weird wails because of the alleged discourtesy of Tecumsehs to Shamrocks on Saturday. It appears, the Indians did not send a case of ginger ale to the Irish dressing room after the game. But then how could they when that dressing room was surrounded by thousands of cheering Irishmen, through which it would have taken heavy artillery to clear a passage. Then again, it is charged that the Shamrock players were refused admission to the dock for a time and compelled to stand out among the crowd. This is true, but it was the slips away to the clubhouse and Shamrock followers and not the men in charge of the gates, who were to blame. The latter were willing to admit the players, but refused to take in the hundreds of Irishmen behind them. At that the first Tecumseh official who came along arranged for their admission by a side gate, but close to him as they go to the bat to even then the camp-followers came along and rushed the gate.-Toronto

> The great event of the past few days in the trotting world was the Merchants' and Manufacturers' trot at Detroit. Postponed one day on account of rain, it proved well worth waiting for. Veteran racegoers say the duel between Sonoma Girl and Highball was one of the greatest in the history of the sport. The record for the race was lowered, and the last half of one mile was trotted by the California mare in 59 seconds, the fastest half mile ever trotted in a race. For Highball's defeat no excuses are offered, and none are needed. One should not have to explain why he was beaten by a mare that seems to be the fastest green horse that ever faced the starter. Wonderful as is her speed there remains a small handful faithful to the Geers horse, and the opinion has been expressed that he will yet show that his victory on July 4 was no fluke.
