Sullivan Defeated By Brennan

Buffalo, N. Y., June 22.—Knockout Brennan gave Jack (Twin) Sullivan 14 pounds and a licking in ten rounds here last night. Sullivan did not land ten punches in the fight covering and holding, while Brennan fought like a tornado. Brennan was not able to do much damage because of the other's great defence, but he was a winner by the proverbial mile at the close. Brennan weighed 159 and Sullivan 178 pounds.

Sharkey Confident of Victory

Young Sharkey, says he can defeat Saul Gallet and he would like the bout pulled off in the Halifax arena July 1. He is anxious to hear from a Halifax promoter.

PLYMOUTH

Plymouth, where the New Brunswick contingent is landing, to be entrained for Salisbury Plain, has probably a close historical connection with America than any other English town. It is the port from which the Pilgrim Fathers last touched old England when they set out to form that New England with which St. John through Loyalist lineage is so nearly related. Of course the city of Massachusetts that bears the same name commemorates the fact. But the old borough had an interest before that for it was much troubled in the earlier years with France, and it suffered considerably in 1830, 1835, 1877, 1400 and 1402 when the Bretons from across the water destroyed 600 houses. In 1489 Plymouth was granted a charter of incorporation and a fragment of the old fort built about that time is still shown. But it was under Queen Elizabeth that Plymouth rose to the glory that is hers. It became the first port of the kingdom and in the discovery of the New World it played a prime part. Martin Codrington, of the town was with Cabot when he touched the coast of America. In 1497, Sir John Hawkins was a native of the town. In 1577 Sir Francis Drake set sail from Plymouth Sound on his first voyage round the world. A company was formed to colonize America from Plymouth, but it like many another company in America since that date, came to nothing. About ten years later Drake sailed again from the port to the West Indies and brought back the remnant of Sir Walter Raleigh's Virginian colony.

But above all it was in the Sound of Old Plymouth that Sir Francis Drake lay in that memorable year, so like the present one of national crisis, when with 120 ships he waited for the coming of the Spanish Armada.

On the Hoe of Plymouth, from which according to the telegraph, cables crowds cheered the arriving Canadian transports this week as once they watched the Pilgrim Fathers sail away. Drake and his officers played that immortal game of bowls when the captain of the frigate arrived to say that he had seen the Spaniards in the English Channel. His officers wanted to rush to their ships in excitement and put to sea to meet the invaders.

"No," was the answer of Drake—and it seems echoed in the calm, firm preparation of Kitchener today, "we have to finish the game, and to beat the Spaniards too."
