BULLET STRUCK HIM IN HEAD

Experience of Fred Bartlett, Aged Man, of Lower Maugerville.

A remarkable tale of a narrow escape was related to a reporter for the Times this morning. Fred Bartlett, aged about eighty years, a resident of Lower Maugerville, was struck in the head by a bullet one day recently. The bullet apparently had come from a considerable distance as it was pretty well spent. It was thought that it had come from an island in the river opposite Oranmore. It passed through his hat and a mark could be found in his head where the bullet seemingly had entered. The doctor who examined him advised that he be taken to Fredericton for an X-ray examination. A peculiar feature of the incident was that when the old man was asked if he had a headache he said he had but none afterwards.

The Times informant cited this incident as an example of the need for great care in the use of guns especially in view of the fact that the opening of the shooting season.

De Pachmann Is Not Bashful Man

Pianist Declares He Is Marvelous and His Work Perfect.

New York, Aug. 31.—Vladimir de Pachmann, a Russian, admitted upon his arrival on the Majestic, that he was the greatest pianist.

He is the greatest player—the greatest player, he declared. "Nothing could be finer or more superb than what I play, I say, 'It is finished—a perfect thing. Thank God.'"

Coming for his second of playing, de Pachmann said it was not until he was 70 years old that he had learned the real meaning of playing. He demonstrated his method on a white table in a cabin of the Majestic, showing how his wrists became perfectly stiff the while his fingers moved smoothly over the space representing the keys.

Godovsky, he said, is the greatest living composer.

On the subject of critics, de Pachmann said they existed in only three cities of the world—Berlin, Rome and Boston.

He has received many medals for his playing.

Young Olmstead headed his class at Annapolis last year at the same time his brother George took first honors in his graduating class at West Point.

Jerauld Olmstead's graduation was endangered by publication of objectionable matter in the Annapolis yearbook, for which he was censured as editor-in-chief. A third brother, F. L. Olmstead, is now a plebe at Annapolis.

Also Continuation of World Lightweight Championship Bout.

Washington Irving's grotesque fiction of early New York days when witchcraft was rife entitled, "The Headless Horseman" or "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow" is the Imperial's delightfully amusing feature for tonight and tomorrow. STILL UNDECIDED ABOUT LOCATION OF HYDRO LINE

The location of the pole line for the Civic Power Commission, from the highway bridge at the end of Douglas Avenue to the Asylum grounds, was still undecided.

It was said this morning by A. W. Carlton, chairman of the Lancaster Highway Board. He said the board had suggested that the line be carried along the western bank of the river to Water street, which, in his opinion, was a shorter route. He said that the highway opposite the Simms factory was only thirty feet in width and the erection of poles there would make it narrower.

Harry Wilson, engineer of the Commission, said it would be possible if the street was ever widened at that point to set back the poles of the city to the new curb line, and as the holes had already been dug he thought they should be moved to go ahead and put up the poles.

Mayor Fisher said he had been trying to secure some information about this matter but some of the parties interested did not think publicity was desirable.

Trace of Owner of Car Abandoned Near This City

From information received by the detective department it is believed that the Studebaker automobile found yesterday morning in the Gypsy Settlement Road belongs to a man named Fogg, of the Vaughan Hotel, Caribou, Maine, and was stolen from him at Houlton. It is said that the son of a resident of the Gypsy Settlement Road saw someone throw the car into the water. An effort will be made to communicate with the owner.

Albert Hawthorne of Bangor, owner of a Maine car recovered by the police in Brunswick street, arrived in the city last night accompanied by his wife. They will drive back to Bangor, leaving here today.

FALLING OFF IN BUILDING WORK

A decided falling off in the number of building permits issued for August this year as compared with the same month of last year was reported by James Carleton, building inspector, this morning. For this year only two permits were issued, one to Fred H. Wilson for a bungalow on Somerset street to cost $1,500, and one to Louis Ross for a dwelling on Crown street, cost $4,500; a total of $6,000 for the month. Last year the amount was $24,500.

In addition to the permits for new buildings there were issued 55 permits for repairs amounting to about $270,000. The total for 1922 is about $270,000 less than for the eight months of 1922. The figures are: 1922, $201,100; 1922, $270,000. The new Albert school will account for $151,000 of this difference, as the permit for it was issued last year.
