BOARD OF HEALTH

Pasteurization Not Dropped;
Dr. Warwick Tells of Urgent Necessity.

A despatch from Fredericton a few days ago conveyed the impression that there was to be nothing done in regard to pasteurization of milk in St. John for another year. This is incorrect. An enquiry by Dr. Warwick brought the information that no action had been taken. Indeed it could not be taken in advance of action by the local board of health. That body has not yet adopted a regulation calling for the pasteurization of milk. When it does so, the measure will be submitted to the minister for approval. The board is strongly convinced of the urgent need for pasteurization, and information it has received in the last few weeks has strengthened its conviction. It has by no means given up the idea of taking action. The fact that sixteen licenses for the sale of milk have been cancelled is but one of many reasons influencing the board. Within the past week sediment tests made on the milk of local producers shows fifty per cent. of them unclean. "If," said Dr. Warwick to The Times this morning, "I could convey to the people some of the things I have seen in the last few days regarding some of the milk supply in St. John, I believe they would either stop drinking milk or come to us and beg that we enforce pasteurization. No system of inspection would watch all the sources of milk supply and distribution all the time. Even with pasteurization there would be the same necessity to stiffen up the inspection in every way. There is great need also of a central plant where all cans and bottles may be properly washed and centralised. There is no disposition to drive milk dealers out of business. It must still be distributed. What we want is to have it distributed under modern, safe conditions. I have no doubt at all that the tuberculosis case-finding campaign will greatly strengthen the case for pasteurization, as a number of glandular cases discovered in children are undoubtedly due to infection with bovine tuberculosis, derived from the milk supply."

Seven Testify for Bettle on
Allegation Made in Case
in Police Court.

The case against Max Schechter, charged with keeping his second-hand store open after ten o'clock on Saturday evening, was resumed this morning. Policeman Bettle called seven policemen to testify that he had not shown any appearance of drinking on the night in question. His Honor severely censured Mr. Schechter for the evidence that he had given when he said that the policeman was under the influence of liquor. Under the evidence, he said, he would have to find the defendant but as there was no evidence to show that the place had been open for the transaction of business but that, on the contrary, three witnesses swore that no business had been transacted after hours. His Honor reviewed the evidence and said that the weight was certainly in favor of the police. He said that, while there were others in the store at the time the policeman arrived, none but the defendant and his two sons had been called as witnesses by the defence.

R. Morton Smith Says Business
Seems to be Improving
But Some Factors are Not
Pleasing.

R. Morton Smith of Manchester Robertson Allison Ltd., returned to St. John this week after a buying trip to England and Ireland. In an interview with The Times, Mr. Smith gave his impressions of conditions at present in England.

Business conditions in the old country seemed to be improving, Mr. Smith said, and the people were optimistic, although the labor situation might be considerably better. Mr. Smith said that he found business men very optimistic about the future of trade. Their greatest markets for manufactures seemed to be Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. In the last mentioned place the conditions were looking up since the settling of the rebellion there and the hampering effect it had upon trade seem to have been mostly overcome.

The cost of living, Mr. Smith said, was still very high and the rents and taxes would seem enormous in comparison with ours. The demand appeared to be for small houses, either for purchase or rental, no one seeming to want the larger houses, which were being offered for sale and to rent in numbers. Many of the fine old estates were being offered for sale on account of the lack of funds for their upkeep experienced by the families owning them. Several of these had been given to large charitable enterprises for the same reason.

In speaking of the labor situation, Mr. Smith said that strikes were sapping the life blood of industry and that the leaders at present at the head of labor seemed to be extremely radical, the reasonable and thoughtful ones having been forced aside. Unemployment was also very prevalent, he said, it being estimated that there were more than 4,000,000 men out of work at the present time. One city mentioned as having 18,000 unemployed out of a population of about 200,000.

Drink he characterized as a great menace to the future of the country. He told of seeing men and women crowded into some of the public houses, drinking and waiting for drinks, while their children stayed outside on the sidewalks and watched baby carriages.

German goods were entering England in great quantities, Mr. Smith said, although they were hampered by the reparation tax regulations, sometimes being held up for some time on this account. The German industries were also hampered by the lack of raw materials which they had to get from other countries. The toys were made from English tin and glove and cotton fabrics were imported into Germany as well as many other materials necessary to their manufactures. The agents of the German firms with businesses established in England before the war were returning to the field as quickly as conditions would allow them, he said, and it was useless to attempt to stem the tide of German industrial products.

In regard to the emigration situation, Mr. Smith gave it as his belief that many of the better class, the ambitious, hard-working class, of young Englishmen were ready to come to this country if the money necessary for the trip and to get them settled were forthcoming. The lack of money was holding many of the estate of Wm. Shaw, really $22,700 and personally $87,000. Mr. Puddington was proctor. Mr. Shaw left no will.

The last will of Fred E. Marvin was proved, personally $14,250, and his son and daughter Harry A. and Linda Marvin sworn as executors. The estate was left within the family. W. H. Harrison was proctor.

David Moore was appointed administrator of the estate of Mary Ann Ray, personally $2,521. C. F. Sanford was proctor.

The will of the late Miss Ada B. Hamilton was admitted to probate today and contained several bequests to public institutions. To the Commissioners of the General Public Hospital, St. John, $400 to be used by them for furnishing a room in the hospital in memory of her sister, the late Margaret S. Hamilton; To the Home of Incurables, $300; To the Protestant Orphan's Home, $200; The balance of the estate was divided among relatives and friends of the deceased. C. H. Hamilton was proctor.

C. N. R. WAGES
Ottawa, April 7.—(Canadian Press)—Officials of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railroad Employees have interviewed Minister of Labor Murdock and Minister of Railways Kennedy, urging that the majority of the board of arbitration headed by Rev. Byron Stauffer of Toronto, should be put into effect.

There is an upward revision in the wages of the lower paid employees on the Canadian National Railways.

Inquiry into the matter was promised.

TRAFFIC CASE
Louis Corey appeared this morning on a charge of exceeding the speed limit and not sounding his automobile horn at the corner of Richmond and Prince Edward streets on Sunday, March 19.

His evidence was in and the magistrate said that he would have to strike a fine for the speeding as the witnesses for the defence admitted that the car had gone around the corner at twelve an hour. Corey paid $10.
