His accounts of his Marine Excursions over the extensive Coral Reefs which encircle the Island, fill some of the most pleasant pages of the volume. A better description of Tropical Submarine beauties and rarities has seldom, if ever, been given.—Athenæum, London. An examination of the Institute th morning shows the damage to be even greater than was supposed last night. Nearly all the chair cushions have to be eplaced, while many of the long cushion are also destroyed. The Direc tors are to meet Monday forenoon to decide on the amount which the com mittee are to be required to pay. About $400 was mentioned this morning as the probable amount of damage done to the milding after an inspection by some of the Directors and the members of the committee. Department of Finance, returned from the Post Office yesterday morning, he carried, with other mall matter, a small box resembling a boy's paint box, which was covered with varnished paper on one side, and addressed to the Comptroller. The direction was composed of printed black letters; separately and uneverly joined. They read: "Andrew H. Green, Controler, City Hall. Private."

Ten cancelled two cent stamps surnounded the address, while from the box hung a piece of twine about a foot long. Mallon, who is an ex-policeman, had his suspicious excited, and on arriving at the Comptroller's office he handed it to. Mr. Earle, the County Auditor, whom he made aware of his impressions. Mr. Green directed John Devlin, his jaultor, to have the box opened. The latter carefully perforated one side, tipped it up, and powder ran through the hole. He then whittled off a part of the edge, and it was seen that the upper part was arranged with a sliding cover. The box was soaked in water, and the cover drawn out. Inside were several ounces of powder, and eighteen small metallic cartridges, loose.
