Wolfe, but no little wolves. The deficiency was a great grief to them. But one day when Wolfe went to fodder the milch cow, stapping to pull the ears, he found a girl baby, wrapped in red flannel. Living, too! Had been living only a few hours. Of course he carried this natural curiosity in to show it to Mrs. Wolfe.

She encompassed it about with new linen, and then sat down to make baby clothes. As for Wolfe, he behaved like a maniac. He danced and sung, and smote his wife mildly on the back, and cried, "Bully for us!" In the exuberance of his joy it is said that he went out and hitched up a yoke of calves and drove round the house, yelling like an Indian. FIRE INSURANCE. 339 Hhds. Bright Porto Rico Sugar. 16 North Wharf. The following telegram from Ron The ceremony commenced at four p. m. and lasted until half-past five. There were about 1,000 Englishmen and Ameritan processors. As soon as Cardinal Manning entered the Church, the Curread to him the Pontifical brief assigning him the title of St. Andrew and St. Gregory. His Eminence first addressed a lew words in Italian to the Fathers of the Church of St. Gregory, and then delivered a long address in English to the congregation, in which he dwelt upon the history of St. Gregory, the great founder of Catholicism in England. He said, "This is the first time that an Englishman, a son of St. Gregory, the great founder of Catholicism in England. He said, "This is the first time that an Englishman, a son of St. Gregory, takes possession of his titular Church. The great congregation I see before me has certainly not come here from curiosity. It is the worthy spiritual daughter of St. Gregory, the Apostle of England because the Christian people of England holecause the Christian people of England inhabiting not only our islands, but also our coionies and the United States of America, is wholly descended from that great and Holy Pope." Cardinal Manning further remrked that from this Convent of St. Gregory had issued the first Archishop of Canterbury, the first Bishop of York. Speaking afterwards of Christian faith, he said the gift of piety had for its chief object God, for its second the family, and for its third one's native country. In conclusion he saluted the assemblage, saying he knew a portion of his hearers personally, and desired to know them all. He expressed a hope that he should meet them again at the last day, when God counted His morning by the Pope. After the closing of the mouths of the cardinals and gave them the rings.

Their families gathered on the beach and expressed their grief in loud lamentations. A talented half-breed, called Bill Ragsdale, has long held a high place in the regard of Sandwich Islanders. He is an orator of great natural power, a leader of the district of Hilo, and a man of notoriously bad morals. He discovered that he was leprous, although the indications were so slight that he had escaped official notice, and at once gave himself up to the authorities. A procession of natives, singing and carrying flowers, escorted him to the vessel which was to take him and the others to their living graves. He made a speech to the Assembly, urging submission to the measures for eradicating leprosy by banishment, and expressing his hatred of missionaries.
