Ottawa, October 17, 1914.

Mr. William L. Ramsay,
Bladworth, Sask.

My dear Mr. Ramsay:

Your letter of the 8th instant, just received, is a source of much pleasure to me. Let me thank you for the generous congratulations it tenders and the kindly hopes it expresses.

As soon as I receive the copy of the address of which your letter makes mention, it will give me much pleasure to read it and give you a frank opinion on its point of view.

I cannot regard myself as in any way an authority on educational matters, but I know I shall be deeply interested in what you have written, and will be glad to give you, concerning it, my opinion for what it may be worth.

With kind regards, believe me,

Yours sincerely,

W. L. MACKENZIE KING
