I am not curious in placing these gentlemen, but put them downe at a venture. Only I observed, as neere as I could, the iust day and time when they were created. And I trust the place of it selfe is so worthy and equall, there the bare naming and placing of the parties byee no offence, or make a disparity. The two gentlemen that were last knighted were their knighthood in the way of our returne from Cadiz: the one of them vpon the sea, not from the Bay of the Groyne, at what time our ships stood vpon their staies for a space, whyle certaine Pinnasses were sent to descrite what shipping was at the Groine: The other at Pimmar in the open streete, when the Lordes Generall came from the Sermon. The one a man of seruice, and good desert among the Dutch: the other of so many good parts of a worthy gentleman, as the like are seildome seene to concur in any.

I spake in the beginning of her Spaieties prayer, which I presumed (though in worthy place into Latine: and now at this very time, there was some opportunity offered, for some use of that translation. For now being in Cadiz, attending vpon my most honorable good Lord, I talked with certaine of the Religious men, such as I found leaues, where desired there were some, though not very many. I talked also with the Bishop of Culco, a gentle aged comely man, and being of late chosen to that Bishopricke, he was as then gone to the Indies, but not we then taken him prisoner, and so stayed his journey for some while these men euer as occasion did serue, I did seeke now and then to spende some time and to entertaine time withall, I would breake with them of this our victorie, and of the ries and bad dealings of their Prince and Countrey offered to her Spaietie, whereby they prouoked, and in a manner drawn to this conclusion: though ocherwise of her own most ex-
