

nursed it into adolescence and full grown maturity. Too often has capital been proved to be a veritable Gargantua of insatiable appetite slowly immolating his victims; while my studies have led me to conclude that it will be impossible to prevent international wars from being called into being at the will of the Armament Trust and its parasitic underlings and that ordinary commercial business will not be conducted either morally or with due consideration for the rights of the weak if the principle enunciated in America of "taking all that the traffic can bear" be accepted as an economic necessity. Never, indeed, can the simplest yet most difficult of all commandments, "Do unto others as ye would that others do unto you," become in any degree obeyed nor the ills of society be greatly ameliorated, much less removed, until land, labor and capital be bound together in a bond of love, greater than any sworn oath to ever love, honor and obey one another: Then and then only, shall be fulfilled, the highest law, the law of Christ!
