

PROVIDENTIAL CIRCUMSTANCES.—On Tuesday evening last, Mr. F. W. Willisford, surgeon, was arrested by a noise which proceeded from an area. He was at first inclined to disregard it, and actually walked some distance past the house, but curiosity induced him to return, and the noise being repeated at the same moment, he recognized it as that of a person in the act of choking, but it being quite dark he could see nothing. He immediately obtained admittance, and ran toward the area, but finding no one there, and observing a step ladder against the cistern, Mr. Willisford ascended it, plunged his arm as low as he could reach into the water, and extricated the body of a young female, and, with the assistance of Mr. Chinnoek, succeeded in restoring animation, which had nearly become extinct. It appears that the only cause for this rash attempt at self-destruction was a disagreement between the girl and her mistress. When it is considered that Brompton-grove is out of the line of road, and therefore very little frequented, it must strike every one that this young creature has been saved from a premature death by a most merciful interposition of Divine Providence. Lon. pap.
