

CANADIAN LEAGUE OWNERS LOOK FOR BETTER SEASON IN 1915

Held Meeting in Toronto Yesterday Afternoon, But Very Little Business Was Taken Up—Toronto Club's Protest Was Dismissed.

TORONTO, Oct. 6.—A meeting of the Canadian Baseball league was held at the Prince George Hotel yesterday afternoon, with representatives from all eight clubs in the league present. President Fitzgerald was in the chair. The directors, just through the worst season baseball ever witnessed, were satisfied that the worst is over, and are prepared to go into another year with the hope, at least off a better season. Most of the clubs lost money, but all did it gamely, and are preparing for next year as a class B organization, whether their circuit gives them an opportunity of a raise or not. The president was authorized to attend the meeting of the National Association at Omaha, in November. He was also given authority to revise the constitution and by-laws for submission to the annual meeting. The appeal of Toronto against the decision of the directors in the Peterboro-Toronto game, of June 3, was dismissed. Messrs. Stevely and Nelson were reappointed auditors.

NIGHT LINES FORM FOR WORLD'S SERIES TICKETS

Philadelphia Fans "Camping Out" With Lunches and Cushions.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6.—Although the public sale of world's series tickets does not begin until 9 o'clock Wednesday morning, a line of prospective purchasers half a block long had taken up their places early last night in front of the department store where the tickets will be placed on sale.

One enterprising chap camped on a soap box at the head of the line at 7 o'clock Monday morning. He is Jos. Banks of Camden, N.J., and says he and his brother, by taking turns in holding the coveted place, hope to acquire the first tickets disposed of. They are for his father, who, he said, had not missed a championship series for many years.

Several of the men and boys in line did not hesitate to say that they would dispose of their places if they received a fair offer. Many in the waiting line had come prepared to spend the night, as was evidenced by the lunch boxes and cushions they carried. Crowds of onlookers surrounded the line, and a detail of police was on hand to keep order.

HOW'S THIS We offer One Hundred Dollars reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. We, the undersigned have known F. J. Cheney for the past 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by him.

NATIONAL BANK OF COMMERCE, Toledo, O. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75 cents per bottle. Sold by all druggists. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Chief Justice Sir William Meredith to-day celebrates the 20th anniversary of his elevation to the Bench.

SUTHERLAND'S

Now is the Time to Buy Your WALL PAPER

We have laid aside a large number of lots, from 8 rolls to 20 rolls each. These lots comprise papers suitable for bedrooms, sitting-rooms, dining-rooms, halls and parlors, at all prices. We will clear these at less than cost. Bring the sizes of your rooms.

All widths, in white, cream, gold and oak. Room Mouldings. All widths and colors in Burlap.

J. L. SUTHERLAND

Snap Shot Albums

This is the time to make up your album of pictures taken during the summer. We have many varieties in both loose leaf and solid binding. CALL AND SEE OUR LINE.

STEDMAN'S BOOKSTORE

Both Phones 569 160 Colborne St.

Reduce the high cost of living
Do you know that buying soap in cakes is wasting from 25¢ to 40¢ on every dollar? N.P. SOAP, the best soap you ever used, costs 15¢ a bar. It weighs more than four 5¢ cakes of ordinary soap, and more than five cakes of some brands.
BUY IT, WEIGH IT, TRY IT.

TWO UNBEATEN TEAMS IN ENGLISH SOCCER

Manchester City and Watford Have Yet to Lose—Big Crowd at Blackburn.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The result of the first month of the English soccer season shows only two clubs from the three big leagues who have yet to lose their first game—Manchester City of the first division, and Watford of the Southern League. The great success of the latter, who are a strong second in the table, is quite the sensation of the season, especially as they had such a hard struggle last season in escaping relegation to the second division, and have only three new players in their team. Brighton and Hove are at the top with a lead of four points, but have played one game more.

The star attraction of the first division of the English League was the game at Blackburn between the famous Manchester City and Watford, which aroused much enthusiasm. Thirty thousand people turned out to see their favorite teams. The game was a hard struggle, but Manchester City, the only goal scored in a thrilling game, which gave Manchester City at the top of the table, and the only unbeaten club in the league.

SECRET PRACTICE HELD BY THE ATHLETICS

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6.—Secret practice in preparation for the world's championship series with the Boston Braves was started to-day by the Philadelphia American League team. It was planned to give the Mackmen a hard drill for two hours in the forenoon and afternoon, and on Thursday will be devoted to plays that it is hoped will be effective against the National League champions. The Athletics will line up against the New York Americans this afternoon, while the final game of their regular schedule will be played to-morrow against the same team.

Manager Mack announced last night that the National League winners will not hold their preliminary practice at Shibe Park, the home of the American League here, but will practice for the world's series on the grounds of the Philadelphia Nationals. The game expected to come here from Brooklyn immediately after to-day's game.

Robert McKoy, representative of the National Commission, is expected here to-day to consult with John D. Shibe, secretary of the Athletics, regarding the public sale of tickets, which opens to-morrow.

"I'd make the wages fair," urged the deacon, looking round the clean kitchen, with the breakfast table sitting near the sunny window and the odor of corned beef and cabbage issuing temptingly from a boiling pot on the fire. "I hope she ain't a great meat eater," he thought, "but it's too soon to cross that bridge yet awhile."

"I've no doubt of it," said the widow, wondering if her voice rang true, but she got a pension, and why should I leave this cozy little home? Would I better myself any—that's the question? I'm kind of lonesome here. That's the only reason I'd consider a move."

"No need o' bein' lonesome down to the Falls," said the deacon. "And I'm in 'n' out all day, between the barn an' the store."

This, indeed, was not a pleasant prospect, but Jane Tillman had faced worse ones in her time.

"I'm no hand at any work outside the house," she observed, as if reflecting. "I can truthfully say I'm a good cook and have a great faculty for making a little go a long ways." (She considered this a master stroke, and, in fact, it was, for the deacon's mouth absolutely watered at this apparently unconscious comprehension of his disposition.) "But I'm no hand at any chores in the barn or shed," she continued. "My husband would never allow me to do that kind of work."

"Perhaps I could get a boy to help out. I've been kind o' fond o' that lately. What wages would you expect if I paid a boy for the rough work?" asked the deacon tremulously.

"Well, to tell the truth, I don't quite fancy the idea of taking wages. Judge Dickinson wants me to go to Alfred and housekeep for him and named $42 a month. It's good pay, and I haven't said 'No.' But my tent is small here. I'm my own mistress, and I don't feel like giving up my privileges."

"Twelve dollars a month?" He had never thought of approaching that sum, and he saw the heap of unwashed dishes growing day by day and the cream souring on the milk pans. Suddenly an idea sprang full blown into the deacon's mind. "Good Morrell's 'Old Driver' must have been close at hand! Would Jane Tillman marry him? No woman in the three villages would be more obnoxious to his daughters; that in itself was a distinct gain. She was a fine, robust figure of a woman in her early forties, and she thought, after all, that the hollow chested, spindle shanked kind were more expensive to feed on the whole than their better padded sisters. He had never had any difficulty in managing wives and thought himself quite equal to one more bout, even at sixty-five, though he had just the faintest suspicion that the high color on Mrs. Tillman's prominent cheek bones, the vigor shown in the coarse black hair and handsome eyebrows, might make this task a little more difficult than his previous ones.

"If you'd like to have a home o' your own 'bout payin' rent, you're only got to say the word an' I'll make you Mrs. Baxter," said the deacon. "There'll be nobody to interfere with you, an' a handsome legacy if I die first, for none o' my few savins is go-

THE STORY OF Waitstill Baxter

By KATE DOUGLAS WIGGIN.

Copyright, 1913 by Kate Douglas Wiggin.

"I surmised something was going on," returned Mrs. Tillman. "I saw Pater and Mark drive away early this morning, with Mr. and Mrs. Wilson wrapping the girl up and putting a hot soapstone in the sleigh and consid'able kissing and hugging thrown in."

This knowledge added fuel to the flame that was burning fiercely in the deacon's breast.

"Well, how about the housekeepin'?" he asked, trying not to show his eagerness and not recognizing himself at all in the enterprise in which he found himself indulging.

"I'm very comfortable here," the lady responded airily, "and I don't know's I care to make any change, thank you. I didn't like the village much at first, after living in larger places, but now I'm acquainted it kind o' gains on me."

Her reply was carefully framed, for her mind worked with great rapidity, and she was mistress of the situation, almost as soon as she saw the deacon's slighting frown. He was not the sort of a man to be a casual caller, and his manner bespoke an urgent errand. She had a pension of $6 a month, but over and above that sum her living was precarious. She made her money as a seamstress, and for her she was a master hand at dealing with the opposite sex. Deacon Baxter, according to common report, had ten or fifteen thousand dollars stowed away in the banks, so the situation would be as simple as possible under ordinary circumstances. It was as easy to turn out one man's pockets as another's when he was a normal human being, but Deacon Baxter was a different proposition.

"I wonder how long he's likely to live," she thought, glancing at him covertly out of the tail of her eye. "His evil temper must have driven more than one nail in his coffin. I wonder if I refuse to housekeep whether I'll get a better offer. I wonder if I could manage him if I got him. I'd rather like to set in the Baxter place at the orthodox meeting house, after the way some of the Baptist sisters have snubbed me since I come here."

Not a vestige of these incendiary thoughts showed in her comely countenance.

"I'd make the wages fair," urged the deacon, looking round the clean kitchen, with the breakfast table sitting near the sunny window and the odor of corned beef and cabbage issuing temptingly from a boiling pot on the fire. "I hope she ain't a great meat eater," he thought, "but it's too soon to cross that bridge yet awhile."

"I've no doubt of it," said the widow, wondering if her voice rang true, but she got a pension, and why should I leave this cozy little home? Would I better myself any—that's the question? I'm kind of lonesome here. That's the only reason I'd consider a move."

"No need o' bein' lonesome down to the Falls," said the deacon. "And I'm in 'n' out all day, between the barn an' the store."

This, indeed, was not a pleasant prospect, but Jane Tillman had faced worse ones in her time.

"I'm no hand at any work outside the house," she observed, as if reflecting. "I can truthfully say I'm a good cook and have a great faculty for making a little go a long ways." (She considered this a master stroke, and, in fact, it was, for the deacon's mouth absolutely watered at this apparently unconscious comprehension of his disposition.) "But I'm no hand at any chores in the barn or shed," she continued. "My husband would never allow me to do that kind of work."

"Perhaps I could get a boy to help out. I've been kind o' fond o' that lately. What wages would you expect if I paid a boy for the rough work?" asked the deacon tremulously.

"Well, to tell the truth, I don't quite fancy the idea of taking wages. Judge Dickinson wants me to go to Alfred and housekeep for him and named $42 a month. It's good pay, and I haven't said 'No.' But my tent is small here. I'm my own mistress, and I don't feel like giving up my privileges."

"Twelve dollars a month?" He had never thought of approaching that sum, and he saw the heap of unwashed dishes growing day by day and the cream souring on the milk pans. Suddenly an idea sprang full blown into the deacon's mind. "Good Morrell's 'Old Driver' must have been close at hand! Would Jane Tillman marry him? No woman in the three villages would be more obnoxious to his daughters; that in itself was a distinct gain. She was a fine, robust figure of a woman in her early forties, and she thought, after all, that the hollow chested, spindle shanked kind were more expensive to feed on the whole than their better padded sisters. He had never had any difficulty in managing wives and thought himself quite equal to one more bout, even at sixty-five, though he had just the faintest suspicion that the high color on Mrs. Tillman's prominent cheek bones, the vigor shown in the coarse black hair and handsome eyebrows, might make this task a little more difficult than his previous ones.

"If you'd like to have a home o' your own 'bout payin' rent, you're only got to say the word an' I'll make you Mrs. Baxter," said the deacon. "There'll be nobody to interfere with you, an' a handsome legacy if I die first, for none o' my few savins is goin' to my daughters, I can promise you that!"

The deacon threw out this tempting bait advisedly, for at this moment he would have poured his heart into the lap of any woman who would help him to avenge his fabled wrongs.

"This was information indeed! The 'few savins' alluded to amounted to some thousands, Jane Tillman knew. Had she not better turn her ships behind her, take the risks and have faith in her own powers? She was getting along in years, and her charms of person were lessening with every day that passed over her head. If the deacon's queer ways grew too queer, she thought, as appeal to the doctor and the minister might provide a way of escape and a neat little income to boot. So, on the whole, the marriage, though much against her natural inclinations, seemed to be providentially arranged.

If Jane Tillman became Mrs. Baxter she intended to get the whip hand and keep it, but nothing was further from her intention than to make the deacon miserable if she could help it. That was not her disposition, and so, when the deacon left her house, he had made more accommodations in a single hour than in all the former years of his life.

His future spouse was to write out a little paper for his signature; just a friendly little paper to be kept quite private and confidential between themselves, stating that she was to do no work outside of the house; that her pension was to be her own; that she was to have $5 in cash on the first of every month in lieu of wages; and that in case of her death occurring first she was to have a third of his estate, and the whole of it if at the time of his death she was still pleased with his bargain. The only points in this contract that the deacon really understood were that he was paying only $5 a month for a housekeeper to whom a judge had offered $12; that, as he had expected to pay at least $8, he could get a boy for the remaining $3, and so be none the worse in pockets; also that if he could keep his daughters from getting his money, he didn't care what they had it, as he hated the whole human race with entire impartiality. If Jane Tillman didn't behave herself he had planned visions of converting most of his fortune into cash and having it dropped off the bridge some dark night, when the doctor had given him up and proved to the satisfaction that death would occur in the near future.

All this being harmoniously settled, the deacon drove away and caused the announcement of his immediate marriage to be posted directly below that of Waitstill and Ivory Boynton.

"A spite match," the community in general called the deacon's marriage, and many a man and many a woman, too, regarding the amazing publishing notice in the frame up at the meeting house, felt that in Jane Tillman Deacon Baxter had met his Waterloo.

CHAPTER XXX. Two Heavens.

THE very moment that Deacon Baxter was starting out on his quest for a housekeeper, the Mason drove up, and the sisters flew into each other's arms. The dress that Mark had bought for Patty was the usual charming and unsuitable offering of a man's spontaneous affection, being of dark violet cloth with a wadded cape lined with satin.

Waitstill in her plain linsey-woolsey was entranced with Patty's beauty and elegance, and the two girls had a few minutes of sisterly talk, of interchange of radiant hopes and confidences before Mark tore them apart, their cheeks wet with happy tears.

"It's your own wedding present to use as you wish," Mark answered, "and it's exactly like you to give it away. Go ahead and spend it if you want to. I can always earn enough to keep you without anybody's help."

And Mark, after cracking the whip vaingloriously, kissed his wife just over the violet ribbon and, with sleigh bells jingling, they sped over the snow toward what seemed Paradise to them, the New Hampshire village where they had been married and where their new life would begin.

So a few days later Waitstill received a great parcel which relieved her of many tedious anxieties, and she began all the hours she cut and stitch during all the hours she had to herself. They were not many, for every day she trudged to the Boynton farm and began with youthful enthusiasm the household tasks that were so soon to be hers by right.

(To be Continued.)

An ammunition famine threatens among Toronto rifle clubs.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

ALL KIDNEY DISEASES

BRAND 23 THE PR

For Dandruff, Falling Hair or Itchy Scalp—25 Cent Danderine

Girls! Girls! Save Your Hair! Make It Grow Luxuriant and Beautiful.

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty, and is radiant with life, has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp and the hair roots flake, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine and any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. It eventually—why not now?

BONDS FORFEITED.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—The $55,000 bail bonds of Jack Johnson, the prizefighter, were forfeited by the United States district court, but the Government is said to have a poor chance of collecting. The bonds were provided for by the late Matthew Baldwin, whose estate is insolvent, and Johnson's mother. The bonds were furnished to guarantee Johnson's appearance for retrial to-day on the charges that he violated the Mann Act in transporting Belle Schrieber from Pittsburgh to Chicago. He was convicted on the first trial, but error was discovered by the court of appeals.

The thermometer rose to 75 degrees in Toronto, while snow fell in Alberta.

OPENS UP NOSTRILS, CLEARS HEAD, ENDS COLDS OR CATARRH AT ONCE

Instantly Relieves Swollen, Inflamed Nose, Head, Throat—You Breathe Freely—Dull Headache Goes—Nasty Discharge Stops.

Try "Ely's Cream Balm."

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. Apply a little in the nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely, dullness and headache disappear. By morning the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will be gone.

End such misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nostrils penetrates and heals the inflamed, swollen membrane which lines the nose, head and throat; clears the air passages; stops nasty discharges and a feeling of cleansing, soothing relief comes immediately.

Don't lay awake to-night struggling for breath, with head stuffed, nostrils closed, hawking and blowing. Catarrh or a cold, with its running nose, foul mucous dripping into the throat, and raw dryness is distressing but truly needless.

Put your faith—just once—in "Ely's Cream Balm" and your cold or catarrh will surely disappear.

On sale at leading drug stores in Brantford.

The Secret of a Good Figure often lies in the shoulders. Hundreds of thousands of women wear the Bin-Jolie Brasiers for the reason that they regard it as necessary to wear a corset. It supports the back and back and gives the figure the youthful outline of fashion deities.

are the daintiest, most serviceable garments imaginable. Only the best of materials are used for the Bin-Jolie Brasiers. They are of great durability—absolutely indestructible—without removal.

They come in all styles, and your local Dry Goods dealer will show them to you on request. If he does not carry them, he can easily get them for you by writing to us. Send for an illustrated booklet showing styles that are in high favor.

BENJAMIN M. JOHNSON
50 Warren Street Newark, N. J.

"HEART SONGS" COUPON PRESENTED BY THIS PAPER TO YOU

HOW TO GET IT ALMOST FREE

Clip out and present five coupons like the above, bearing consecutive dates, together with our special price of 98c. Book on display at office of BRANTFORD DAILY COURIER Tuesday, Oct. 6, 1914.

5 COUPONS AND 98c Secure this $3.00 Volume

The Genuine Cardinal, Seal Grain, Flexible Binding, Red Edges, Round Corners, with 16 full-page portraits of the world's most famous singers, and complete dictionary of musical terms.

Out-of-town readers will add 10c extra for postage and packing

"HEART SONGS" The song book with a soul! 400 of the song treasures of the world in one volume of 500 pages. Chosen by 20,000 music lovers. Four years to complete the book. Every song a gem of melody.

J. S. HAMILTON & CO.

New Premises: 44 and 46 Dalhousie Street

CANADIAN AGENTS
Robt. Brown, Ltd., Four Crown Scotch.
Peele Island Wine Co., Ltd., Peele Island Wine.
H. Thomson & Co., Irish Whiskey.
Webb & Harris, Jamaica Rum.
Cady & Co., Cocoa Wine.

BRANTFORD AGENTS
Carling Brewing Co., Ale, Stout and Lager.
H. Walker & Sons' celebrated Canadian Whiskies.
Radnor Water Co., Radnor Water.
W. A. Ross & Bro., Sloe Gin.
Haig & Haig, Five Star Scotch.

PROPRIETORS
J. S. Hamilton & Co., Brandy.
"St. Augustine" Communion Wine.
"Crusader" Port.
L'Empereur Champagne.
Chateau Pelee Hocks and Clarets.

J. S. HAMILTON & CO.

Y.M.C.A. Campaign Good

Reason as you will, there is one way to describe the Y.M.C.A. campaign of the second year. They were truly magnificent. From the preliminary gathering at the Fellowship Hall to the scenes of the resplendent band success was never for a moment in doubt. Pleasant, happy faces to be seen on all sides, and the found a mask for the grim determination to succeed, which was a of the evening.

All the old fire of Honorary dent George Wedlake returned gave a stirring welcome as the every citizen towards the Y.M.C.A. Others there were and included men such as the Mayor, and last but not least, the Mayor, F. Best, late of Hamilton Y.M.C.A. and formerly of Brantford. By such speakers, spiritually at ally and given strength temp but substantially by the splendid provided by the ladies. At team workers will go forward of success for the start campaign was auspicious in a liance.

The feast done justice to, the erting was called to order as evening's business was then taken.

Chairman Wedlake. In his opening remarks declared that the little were just as welcome as the boys. They made the citizen future. He did not know of a which was so much like home Y.M.C.A. The young men came into the city, should be at inducts to those responsible the erection of such an institu Brantford Y.M.C.A. A pleased to note the business M.C.A. was the business of the man of the future. Man physically fit, mentally fit, ally fit. When the older on hairs of grey they wanted men to take their places.

Brantford had always been front in any work of this kind had responded nobly to the coming generations. So it was the work that the citizens had given $100,000 had it been instead of the $100,000 which required of them.

It was only a year ago institution had been opened. Instead of a 1000 membership obtained 1300 and this year, as he looked round that this obtained. "We are making

Also the same HOME" are house because they are th as nearly perfect a chance to secure th and 10. Upon these and size of "Happy by that date to hav delivery when you as cash. If you pay off regular prices,

Tur HAR