The Seriousness of the Moment.

'Who lives if Britain dies?'
Yesterday's dispatches must necessarily occupy our thoughts for we person can read them without becoming painfully alive to the serious nature of their contents.

But all this frightful slaughter, for it must be appalling on both sides, reads us a lesson and that lesson we learn at a terrible cost. It means men, men, men and still more men.

excepted. He must shoulder the musket. From nineteen years up. 'The world must be made safe for democracy' and in order to accomplish this, precious lives in thousands must be offered to the Moloch of German Militarism, and so Canada is taking the step which will bring her to the fullest stature among the British Dominions Overseas.

Our Departed Heroes.

CAPT. CHARLES STRONG.
Capt. Strong of the Southside received the sad intelligence yesterday that his son, Captain Charles, had died from wounds. Capt. Strong was a man, which we heard one of his school mates say this morning, of the best type in every way, and one which it will be hard to replace.

LIEUT. W. EDWARD BARNES.

The Militia Department were in receipt of a message from London yesterday stating that Lieut. W. Edward Barnes had died of wounds at Wandsworth Hospital. Lieut. Barnes is a son of Mr. Wm. Barnes, carpenter, LeMarchant Road, and went overseas with C. Co. as a non-com and was later given his commission.

Will the good ladies who are knitting for the Shower of Socks, please note that all socks are to be sent to Miss Harris, at Government House, and not to Sutherland Place. It is important also that the name and address of the sender accompany every parcel.
