Appearances.

There is a lot of fallacy in this old world of ours, Pleasure is not always found 'mid riches and her bowers, The fairest day before the night may end in wind and rain, Like joy, as often was the case, may close in grief and pain; Sure all things are deceptive, as our deeds each day disclose, We should never judge a man nor a woman by their clothes.

"Worth makes the man," as Pope says, "the want of it the fella," "And all the rest he likewise says in leather and prunella"; Pope tells us what we see each day, but yet we can't be blind To know that gall comes to the front while worth hangs on behind; Deceptive are appearances, as well as this, like those, We should never judge a man nor a woman by their clothes.

Be watchful of the man you see who is so neatly dressed, With a watch displayed upon his wrist and one within his vest— For often let me tell you, and I'm certain you all know it, There often lies an honest heart beneath a shabby coat; So while you're joggling on through life to you I would propose: You should never judge a man, nor a woman by their clothes. JAMES MURPHY, May 9th, 1918.

His Majesty the King

Visits Salvation Army Hut in London Command Depot and Expresses Himself as 'Well Pleased.'

In the course of a round of visits which he made at the London Command Depot, on Tuesday morning last, His Majesty the King called at the Salvation Army Hut which is conducted by Commandant and Mrs. T. Cox in the camp. There was a numerous company of soldiers in the Hut at the time, though the Commandant was ill, and Mrs. Cox was bravely 'carrying on,' a fact which did not escape His Majesty's commendation. Shaking hands with Mrs. Cox, the King asked a number of questions regarding the efforts which The Salvation Army is making for the welfare of the troops, and expressed himself as well pleased with the comfort and interior arrangements of the Hut. He was also delighted to note the popularity of the institution, as evidenced by the attendance of sailors present. The N. C. O. on duty at the Hut was Sergeant G. Brehant, who furnished this account.—Ex.

Field Marshal's Tribute.

Letter From Sir Douglas Haig.

Just before leaving London on Thursday for his provincial campaigns The General received the following letter from Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig. The generous tribute will be read with intense satisfaction by Salvationists the world over.

'General Headquarters, 'British Armies in France, March 27, 1918.

I am glad to have the opportunity of congratulating The Salvation Army on the service which its representatives have rendered during the past year to the British Armies in France.

'The Salvation Army workers have shown themselves to be of the right sort and I value their presence here as being one of the best influences on the moral and spiritual welfare of the troops at the bases. The inestimable value of these influences is realized when the morale of the troops is afterwards put to the test at the front.

'The Huts which The Salvation Army has staffed have besides been an addition to the comfort of the soldiers which has been greatly appreciated.

'I shall be glad if you will convey the thanks of all ranks of the British Expeditionary Force in France to The Salvation Army for its continued good work.

D. HAIG, Field Marshal, 'Commanding British Armies in France.'
