of Russia Now Undermined.

IGNORANT OF ORDIN-
LAW OF HONESTY. SAYS
REV. F. F. KOMLOSY.

School for Derelicts near Constantinople.

stiffness of the moral dis-has overtaken the youth of Russia and which is in the long run far more than the famine and other troubles that has overtaken them, are cited by Rev. F. F. Komlosy, M.C., founder of the Russian Relief and Reconstruction Fund, who is in Montreal appealing for further support in the work of gathering in derelict Russian children and educating them at a school in the neighborhood of Constantinople with the object of making them mentally, morally and physically worthy of their great fatherland.

"The worst feature," Mr. Komlosy says, "is the most grave and widespread moral debacle. Not only are the grosser forms of immorality everywhere apparent, even among children, but the ordinary laws of honesty, truthfulness and fair-dealing, upon which social and economic life depends, have ceased to call forth obedience. Children recently received from Russia were found to be in a most depraved moral state, and it was quite impossible to allow them to mix at first with the rest of the boys and girls."

The work of the Russian Relief and Reconstruction Fund was first opened up in Russia, but it was found that the Russian authorities would not allow them to go on educating Russian children without interference, and therefore they had to remove their work to Constantinople, where they are now carrying it on in perfect security, with the assurance of General Harrington that there is no danger either to the children or the workers.

To-day there are 400 boys and 200 girls in these schools on the island of Proti, in the Bosphorus, receiving careful medical attention and physical training to counteract the weakening and nerve-shattering effects of their experiences in Russia, as well as general education and moral training to reconstruct their ideals and moral standards which have in most cases been completely destroyed by the environment in which they have lived.

Rev. Mr. Komlosy paid special tribute to the work of the Save the Children Fund, by which, he said, his work had been splendidly backed up.
Referring to present day conditions in Constantinople, he said, the position of the grown up Russian refugees there was infinitely better to-day than it had been during the greater part of the past few years.

Commenting further on the work of the Reconstruction Fund, Mr. Komlosy said:

FAMINE NOT WORST.

"Any appeal on behalf of Russia is at once associated with the starving masses whose sufferings have been so terrible. To-day the rigors of the famine have abated.

"In spite of its appalling proportions, the famine has never been the worst feature of Russia's agony. All reports, from Bolshevik as well as from independent sources, are now making apparent the fact that the moral debacle is beyond anything that has ever happened in the world's history. The saddest feature of this tragic situation is that the wells are being fouled at source. The extent to which the rising generation is impregnated with physical and moral disease and vice is truly appalling.
The outlook for the future is indeed grave and sinister.

"The Russian Relief and Reconstruction Fund endeavored to bring the fact of Russia's moral degradation home to Canadian people two years ago, and asked their support in its work of saving children completely from the wreck. This work has continued steadily, and the large schools near Constantinople are of the few, the very few, bright features in the present outlook. Quite recently, additional children have been received from Russia, but their condition morally was found to be so terrible that a system of segregation has had to be adopted.

"Think of your own children, or other dear children you know, in like condition through no fault of their own. Here is an extract from a Bol-shevist newspaper: 'there are thousands and thousands of homeless children (in Moscow) living in abandoned homes and cellars; gangs of them from 10 years upwards, congregating together as beggars, thieves, prostitutes, awarning in the streets.'

"KOMSMOL" CREED.

"Can the condition of these children be wondered at when the Soviet Government itself has approved the establishment of the 'Komsomol,' or 'Union of Young People,' which consists of youths and girls deprived by systematic effort in the last five years? The main purpose of this organisation is anti-religious. Obedience to or respect for parents is labelled as a bourgeois prejudice; marriage is described as an outworn institution; barbaresques of all known religious observations are applauded in the press, and in all the important towns, youths as well as adults, grotesquely attired in profanation of all objects of veneration, perform antics through the streets and make obscene orations in mockery of religious rites.

Beards and Genius.

"It would be worth some statistician's while to go through the great names of English literature and compare the amount of genius that has gone bearded with the amount of genius that has been clean-shaven."—Robert Lynd.

Mr. Lynd's suggestion has led to some interesting results. For example, beards and books seem to be intimately related. Harrison Ainsworth and Jules Verne both had beards.

Poetry is well represented in the bearded class, among others by William Morris, Browning, Swinburne, Hendley, and Lord Tennyson. Matthew Arnold was hardly a beaver, but he had a good show of side-whiskers. Verlaine, the great French poet, wore a beard. So did the Americans Walt Whitman, Lowell, and Whittier.

Ruskin and Carlyle represent the essayists, Herbert Spencer and Darwin, the scientists, and Tom Hood the humorists.

Great novels and great beards seem to go hand in hand, and it is among the novelists that we find the beards.
Probably the king of all "king beard novelists" was Wilkie Collins, the author of "The Woman in White." With him are Walter Besant and Charles Reade. Dickens is one of the hirsute crew, but he can only be classed as a minor beaver, for his beard only covered his chin.

Famous foreign novelists also affected beards—Tolstoy and Tour-genieff representing Russia; Alphonse Daudet, Zola, and Victor Hugo representing France.

Amongst living men of letters who shorn the razor are Conrad, Hall Caine, Silas Hocking, and George Bernard Shaw.

He craved a Kingdom of his own, and no scruples about how he was going to get it. He planned the death of his own brother, the King of Kurintia, but found his conspiracy defeated because another had been impersonating the King. What his overpowering ambition caused is seen in Rex Ingram's production for Metro of "The Prisoner of Zenda," by Anthony Hope, which comes Monday to the Nickel Theatre.—may 25, 21

Motor Car Vandals.

Motor car owners are being subjected to much annoyance of late by mischievous boys and idle young men, who tamper with the mechanism or otherwise mutilate the machine. Yesterday afternoon a well known citizen left his car parked opposite a hotel on Cochrane Street, where he was making a short call, on returning found that some person using a sharp stone had cut the license number in large figures on the bonnet of the machine. The vandal not satisfied with scratching the number, added several long cuts or flourishes to his work. There is no excuse for such wanton destruction and the guilty party should be rounded up and severely punished.

Inter-Club Billiard Tournament.

INSTITUTE PLAYERS REDUCE GUARDS LEAD.

In last night's game in the Inter-Club Billiard Tournament the C.E.I. players had matters all their own way over the Guards players winning in two games by good margins. In the first session Winsor (C.E.I.) was in remarkable form and easily won out from Mercer (Guards) by 124 points.
He made a fine break of 30, the highest to date. The breaks were:— Winsor (300)—15, 10, 15, 30, 11, 11, 30.
Mercer (176)—11, 16—37.
The second game was played between H. J. Wyatt (Guards) and L.
Hookay (C.E.I.), the latter winning out by 22 points after a closely contested game. The breaks were:— L. Hookay (600)—15, 10, 10, 13, 11, 14, 10—80.
H. J. Wyatt (273)—20, 10, 13, 10, 11, 10—74.

As a result of last night's games the Guards are now only 45 points ahead. The players to-night will be E. White (Guards) vs. E. Churchill, (C.E.I.) at 7:30, followed by A. H.
Thomas (Guards) vs. L. G. Harant (C.E.I.) at 9.
