BASEBALL. LONDON DEFEATS ST. THOMAS. The baseball public here has been fed on strong meat-Hams, for instance—and evidently does not relish ple such as St. Thomas was expected and proved to be. attract the crowd. For a semi-product the crowd. For a semi-p to be in the same class as London. Of the 300 people who saw Saturday's match at Tecumseh Park, nearly half were from St. Thomas. The St. Thomas boys came with the laudable intention of rooting for their own team. They had fish horns and good lungs, which were brought into play the same time as the ball. Lyon's single and Handley's triple in the first grand stand; but when the Londons, in the second, began to get familiar with Handley's shoots and to organize a procession around the bases, the fish-horns suddenly disappeared and the visiting rooters sat mute and disconstolate. In the fourth and fifth a few connections between St. Thomas bats and Kershaw's kerves, brought with some effective pitching. He rather amused the local crowd by his juvenile kicking over the umpire's devised by some of the fans to pack up his dolls and go home. The St. Thomas spectators also found relief for their disappointment in the good old-fashioned way of blaming it on the umpire, but Joe Weber's work was all right, and he was at no time in danger

The Londons Win the Exhibition | ers. He was not considered good enough at that to wear the blue of London, so they shed a few tears over him as a "has been" and set him adrift. The waves of fortune knocked him about gently but slowly, and it was only yesterday that he was washed into the Hamilton camp. He fell into good hands. The sand was washed out of his eyes, and he was togged out in a suit of black—with a great big gash in the right knee of his bloomers. In the afternoon Capt. Dean placed a new white ball in his left hand, and bade him go forth and slaughter his cords were established in two other old-time associates. And maybe you think he didn't do it. The young men from London who looked forward to an afternoon of tag with their old companion always "it," were a badly fooled combination. Just seven little hits—and well scattered hits—did the fooled combination. Just seven little increased by the intense heat. Of the hits-and well scattered hits-did the 27 starters, A. P.
