FEWER HOUSES AT ISLAND TO RENT

When Iceboating Was Made Possible

The iceboating and Island renting season have opened simultaneously with the freezing over of the bay, and English's, Limited, fleet of nine ceboats will be called into service at Canadian, likewise, strictly the English way.

It happens thusly that E. A. English calls into use the icy fliers. His firm has 95 per cent. of the rentable houses on the Island on their lists, and as there are not very many houses to be had over there, they are all snapped up long before spring. The prospective tenants go over on the ice during the winter to look them over. The agents used to send clients over by motor, but, while that is exciting enough, it was not nearly so exhilarating or enthusing as ice-boating over. It's a quick way of getting around to any point on the Island, and on bright days the firm's iceboat crews are kept pretty active.

Island, and on bright days the firm's iceboat crews are kept pretty active.

No loeboat Joyriders.

Land agents are bothered in the summer time by people who look at subdivisions merely for the motor ride. "No, we're not troubled much by iceboating joyriders. Even on sunny days, the Island in winter is not Florida, and the thought of having to get off and tramp over sand and snow to look at vacant houses is not pleasing, except to those who really intend to find a good location for the summer."

The number of houses to rent on the Island is a little less than last year, and Mr. English does not think the number will ever be greater.

Please tell me the best way of putting this deal thru successfully in such a way that I can realize my $10 a foot. Should I purchase the land myself at $50 and then resell it again to my client or should I direct vendor to draw up papers in name of my purchaser direct? In this event how can I get my hands on the $10 per foot?

The simplest way of handling this, and a way that will save law costs, is to sell your client the option, but you an only do this if it is made out "you or your assignees." If the land is 50 feet, sell the option at $500. If you have no assignment rights, to get your profits, you must take up the option and then sell the land to your client.
