Preaching from the words, "For by one spirit we are all been made to drink into one spirit," Dr. Gott said they were like an army of the wounded; worse than that, they were an army fighting against each other; the one spirit was not animating the one body, and as a result they failed to compute the world. Mr. G. T. Fulford, proprietor of Dr. Williams Pink Pills, has returned to Brockville after a prolonged business stay in Paris. In an interview with a Recorder reporter he mentions the Construction of French doctors, and says that one of the roots celebrated of the Versailles doctors has given through the press favorable testimony of cures that the Religiouses, an order of Nuns like the Sisters of Charity, have also made an extensive use of Pink Pills in their charitable work, and given strong testimonials as to thore good effects. ### The Resignation of Monsignor O'Connell.

iii ilealth Compels it—Objects of the Columbian Catholic Summer School—Progress of Chris-tisn Unity — Jubilee of Father Macken Decatur.

Speaking of the proposed League of Catholie Unity consisting of clergymen of the principal Protestant denominations, who hope to unite a divided Ohristendom upon a basis of the four articles adopted by the Lambeth Conference in 1885, Father Abrander P. Doyle, of the Church of the Paulist Fathers, New York, said: "The seatiment in favor of Christian unity is growing stronger as we near the ond of the century. The drawing of the twentieth century will see a rounting Christendom, if not a reunited one. Of course I, as a Catholic, cannot think a great deal of any platform which leaves out the Mother Church, but, as I understand it, that of the League of the Catholic Unity is designed to unite the Protestant denominations. The union of the Protestant denominations is but a stop to their union with the Mother Church. The appeal of the Uly Father is ringing throughout the Christian Churches, and it will not be listened to in vain."

throughout the Christian Churenes, and it will not be listened to in vain."

CATHOLIC SUMMER SCHOOL.

The First session of the Columbian Catholic Summer school will open at Madison, Wis., on Sunday, July 14, and will close on August 4, 1896. The object of the Columbian Catholic Summer School is to increase the facilities for busy people as well as those of leisure to pursue lines of study in various departments of knowledge by providing opportunities of getting instruction from omiment specialists. It is not intended to have the scope of the work limited to any class, but rather to establish an intellectual centre where anyone with serious purpose may find new incentives to efforts for self improvement. Here in the leisure of a summer vacation, with little oxpense, one may listen to the word, condensed and prepared by unselfish masters of study. The opportunity thus provided of combining different classes of students for mutual improvement will be most acceptable to professors and lecturers who wish to have an appreciative audience to enjoy with them the fruits of the latest researches in history, literature, science, art and religion. All these branches of human learning are to be considered in the light of Christian truth, according to Gardinal Nowman's declaration: "Truth is the object of knowledge of whatever kind; and truth means facts and their relations. Religious truth is not only a portion, but a condition of knowledge. To blot it out is nothing short of unraveling the web of university teaching,"

MOR. O'CONNELL RESIONS.

The Rome correspondent of the Boston Pilot writes: It is reported throughout ecclesiastical circles that the Right Rev. Mgr. O'Connell, rector of the American College at Rome, has resigned the rectorship of that institution into the hands of the Holy Father. The cause of this resignation is ill-health, the Right Rev. Rector having suffered severely at brief intervals for several years past. The ten years during which Mgr. O'Connell ruled this college have been years of great progress, both in numbers and status of this most important institution. Under his rectorship the college reached a very high position, at one time having more students than it could conveniently accommodate. All those in Rome who were acquinted with Mgr. O'Connell's regret his resignation, for he had endeared himself to all with whom he had to do. His influence here was very great and was turned to the advantage and benefit of his fellow-countrymen visiting or dwelling in Rome. He was highly appreciated by the Holy Father, and the many cardinals and prelates with whom his position required him to deal. He was kindly, genial and good hearted, a friend to many in distress, a wise counsellor and a sympathetic consoler. From all classes of people, residents in and strangers to Rome, he won golden opinions, and that for many years. His great merits and especially his capacity for administration have been appreciated and recognized in the highest quarters in this city.

**SULTERG OF DEAN MACKEN.**

One of the most noticeable celebrations by the Catholic clergy ever held in Illinois was that held recently at Decatur in observance of twenty-fifth anniversary of the ordination of Very Rev. Peter J. Macken, pastor of St. Patrick's church and Dean of Decatur. The celebration began with Solemn High Mass in the church. Then a banquet was served at Father Macken's residence, where thirty-eight priests sat down. Very Rev. Peter Macken was born in County Armagh, Ireland. When about 16 years old he began the for the ministry at All Hallow college he distin

He was offered a professorship in Melbourne, but chose rather to come to America. He came to Decatur soon after that, arrivingt here October 81, 1870. His first work was as assistant to Father Walsh. After being here a short time he went to Carrollton as pastor, remaining there two years. Then he went to Jacksonville, where he was pastor six years. He came to Decatur as pastor October 81, 1878, succeeding Father Hockey, and has been here over since.

A despatch was received the other day from Rome saying that Cardinal Gibbons had declined the Pope's invitation to surrender his American diocess and to reside in Rome, taking part in the polities of the Vattean. No significance is attached to the desp. teh by the Cardinal's friends in Baltim re.

A Window in His Head.

Although "every dog has his day," few of the species attain to the distinction and celebrity of one which formerly belonged to the lat. Mr. Arthur Durham. The fame of this animal was spread far and wide about five and twenty or thirty years ago, and "Durham's dog" was as well known in scientific circles as the President of the Royal Society. For the better pursuit of his investigations, into the state of the brain in sleeping and waking, Mr. Durham had removed a large part of the animal's skull, and had glazed the office with a stout watchglass. The operation had been performed with the assistance of amostheties, and the dog was quite unaward that anything o' the kind had occurred to him, or that Le had a transparent crown to his cranium. But through this watch-glass the state of the circulation in his brain in sleeping or waking could be observed with the greatest accuracy and case, and much useful informatics was supplied by him. I believe that he lived happily for many years afterwards, and that he suffered no inconvenience from a glass top.—London World.

Bicycles in Africa.

There seems to be an extraordinary craze for cycling in South Africa. The Johannesburg Star states that cycles are more generally used in that town than probably in any other town of similiar size in the world. There are, it adds, some 4,000 machines in use by all classes, from the head of the mining industry down to clerks and shop assistants. One firm have sold 600 in the last two years. Ladies are taking to cycling freely, and so are ducated Kaffirs. When Kaffirs that are not educated follow suit, what a splendid market for wheels in South Africa there will be!
