

Italians have been converted to Christ and both themselves and their children get the English language, they will naturally slip into some English-speaking congregation, become members of it, mingle with English people, in some instances Canadianize their names, and become good citizens of our Dominion.

Among the experiences I have had in connection with Christian work among Italians in Montreal I have found men, women and children, all Italians by birth, in not less than nine English Protestant churches, Presbyterian, Anglican, Methodist, Baptist and Congregational, and I am sure that if an exhaustive survey could be made it would reveal a good percentage of Canadian Protestants of Italian descent.

CONCLUSION.

Our conclusion is that Italians will make a great contribution to the well-being of the Canada of to-morrow if we give them the opportunity, and help them, to secure all the advantages our Dominion can offer. And there is no other agency that can fulfil this task more properly than the church of Christ. Christians of Canada, the appeal is to you. What will your answer be?
