THE LAMBETH CASE.

Straightforward Explanation by Squire Kaiser-No Ignoring of Superior Authority.

To the Editor of The Advertiser: In your issue of Friday, Nov. 20, I noticed an article headed "A Magisterial Mix," and the question asked, "Did Lambeth squires ignore the and sustain progress. Each of these crown attorney's authority?" The article then begins by calling it "a pewho concluded by saying that if his culiar case," and the main facts are stated, relating to an assault committed by William Adams, of Westminster, upon Edwin Thomas, of the same township.

Mr. Thomas gave information and applied for a warrant to Squire Little for the apprehension of William Adams, desiring the case to be disposed of without going to London, for which he gave good reasons. Constable Sadler arrested Adams and brought him up before Mr. Little and myself. Adams pleaded guirty to the charge laid against him, and expressed himself as very sorry for what had occurred, and was willing to recompense Mr. Thomas for any loss of time and expenditure of money which may have been occasioned. We thought that this was very plausible, preventing an after-suit for the recovery of damages, which might be brought after the case was settled. We gave them distinctly to understand, however, that any arrangement that they might arrive at would have nothing to do with the legal aspect of the case under

Adams and Thomas retired by themselves to another room, we holding that it was none of our business, or anyone else's, what they agreed upo We then proceeded, under section 783, chapter 29, Criminal Code, 1892, which provides: "That whenever any person is charged before a magistrate (e) with having committed an aggravated assault by unlawfully and maliciously inflicting upon any person, either with or without a weapon, or instrument, any grievous bodily harm and maliciously wounding." etc. Then section finds the charge proved, he may con-vict the person charged, and commit him to jail, or may condemn him to

Little or myself. I have a number of times consulted Assistant Crown At-torney McKillop, and always consider-ed it prudent and judicious to follow his advice in such matters; but in the absence of any instructions from the attorney we did what we deemed right in the case. We certainly did not consider that Constable Ward had any superior authority. When I saw him in the room I did not know him, and paid no particular attention to him until he said something about being Mr. McK'illop's officer. A short apprehension of Adams before me, signed by a Mr. Lacey. I then learned that Ward was a London West constable, who had come to arrest Adams, but was a little too late; Con stable Sadler, on Mr. Little's warrant, being ahead of him. Mr. Lacey we regarded simply as one of ourselvesan ordinary justice of the peace—and felt under no obligations whatever to stay proceedings, and hand Adams over to Ward and Lacey. This explains the "ignoring" of the crown attorney's Next comes the "peculiarity" of the case. The only thing "peculiar" that I can see about it is this: That as far as we could judge, Ward had taken quite a bit of trouble to earn an honest penny by hunting up game. and after driving eight or nine miles had to return to the city chagrined and disappointed, Sadler having made the arrest. This is the reason, we presume, that he misrepresented us the crown attorney and tried to hold us up to ridicule through the press. We did not know what misrepresentations had been made to the crown attorney when in answer to his letter have asked to let our disposal of the case stand. According to his advice, we committed Adams for trial at the next court of competent jurisdiction and released him on bail.

INTHE SHADOW OF DEATH

The Condition of Many Young Girls in Canada.

Pale Faces and Bloodless Lips-Given to Headaches-Extreme Weakness, Heart Palpitation and Other Distressing Symptons—The Means of Cure Readily

From the Leamington Post. The attention of the Post has lately been frequently called to a remarkable cure in the case of a young girl living within a few miles of this town, whose life was despaired of, but who completely cured in a short space of time by the most wonderful of all remedies, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Since reading in almost every issue of the Post of the cures effected by the use of this medicine, we felt it be a duty we owed to investigate this case which has so urgently been brought to our notice, and we are sure the interview will be read with interest by the thousands of young girls all over Canada, as well as by the parents of such interesting patients.
