One Next Session.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 15 .- (Special.) -A full court will immediately hear arguments' upon the appeal which the attorney-general has entered against Justice Clement's decision that Brit-Ash Columbia courts never had jurisdiction in divorce cases. While the government is confident that the deision will be reversed, divorces will be one of the subjects for legislation at the next session at Victoria, as it is the government's intention to create special divorce court, as it is in England, jurisdiction having always been exercised in British Columbia by all supreme court judges at various civil sitings of that court Meanwhile if the full court should agree that the province has not and never had furisdiction the government will ask Ottawa to legalize all divorces that have been divorces that have been granted as well as remarriages of divorced people.
