The Toronto World building of high level roadways by means of underdecks on the stear The laxity of steam railways in failing to establish suburban services meets with the mayor's disapproval catio and he recommends that app for such a service be made to the railway board. With a tube from the waterfront to the city hall the steam railways might serve an immense area to their own profit and the convenience of the citizens, but they have left the opportunity neglected so long that other plans may supplant this one. Revision of the council manual is intended to cut short the flow of oratory which all past councils have had at their unlimited disposal. The mayor thinks that an alderman should say all he has in him on any question in seven minutes, and say it only once. Should the mayor be able to establish this reform he will deserve a monu-

The Fire Department

There is only one point enlarged of in the mayor's message with which we have any disagreement. The reorganization of the pension fund should take precedence of the appointment of a fire chief, especially if the principle of promotion is to be observed. The fund itself is not able to stand the demands which would be made upon it under such a system of promotion as has been suggested. This is entirely apart from the choice that may be made of the various eligible men that are said to be in the fire department. None of these men would desire to
