CLEAN YOUR CARPETS

TORRINGTON WAY

With the birth of the TORRINGTON VACUUM CLEANER, sweeping day became one of pleasure with its absence of flying, gummy dust, and the ease with which the carpets and rugs can be kept new and bright, their naps kept softer and made to wear longer by the use of the TORRINGTON VACUUM CLEANER which saves its cost many times. It is easy to run and does its work thoroughly. The floating, whirling brush picks up the dirty introduced dirt. The bellows-bag is emptied by a thumb pressure, the dust pans are cleaned at a knock.

Smoker Enjoyed by Large Number of Members and Plans for Season Outlined

A reunion and smoker was held last evening by the members of St. Peter's Young Men's Association in their rooms in Douglas avenue, with a large number of members present. The function was considered one of the most successful held in years.

Following an address of welcome by the president, E. Raymond Hansen, the following programme was carried out: Selection by St. Peter's Y. M. A. orchestra, under direction of Eugene McBride; vocal solo by Andrew Moore, reading by James Martin, vocal solo by Edward O'Hara, piano solo by M. Deland, popular songs by a trio composed of Edward O'Hara, Andrew and Joseph Moore; violin solo by E. R. Hansen, reading by John U. Haggerty, selection by the orchestra, vocal solo by Michael Howard, trombone solo by Arthur Howard, recitation by John J. McDonnell, selections by a minstrel band composed of Eugene McBride, Fred and Joseph Hazel, Arthur Howard, John O'Connor and William McCrossin; vocal solo by James Duffy, address by Rev. F. Coghlan, C. S. R., spiritual director of the association.

Following the conclusion of his remarks he was given a grand ovation.

POLICE COURT

Victim of Drug Habit One of the Prisoners

A soldier was brought before Magistrate Ritchie this morning charged with being drunk in Waterloo street yesterday afternoon. He pleaded guilty. Asked where he got the liquor, he said: "Two fellows of the 6th battalion were with me and they went away last night. I got the liquor from them." He was sent below.

Howard Beardsley was charged with having morphine in his possession and Anna Beardsley, who said she was his sister-in-law, was reported for begging on the Carleton ferry last evening. The man said that he had the morphine habit and could not be without the drug. He said he was from New York state and that he was returning home this week to take a cure and get rid of the habit.

The woman was charged with distributing throughout the men's cabin of the ferry envelopes making an appeal for help and offering to sell packages of court plaster. The only witness was Frederick Lewis who had the pair arrested. Both were sent below.

REV. MR. HOOPER'S THANKS FOR DRURY COVE CONTRIBUTION

The following letter from Major (Rev.) E. B. Hooper is explanatory: Drury Cove, Clifton Road, Buxton, Derbyshire, Eng. Oct. 28, 1917.

Dear Miss Nilsson: Today I received the gift of $25 for my "wounded soldiers' fund." This amount you say represents the proceeds of a candy and ice cream sale at Drury Cove. I am most grateful for this gift. It is especially valuable now, for our Granville Canadian special hospital has been removed from Ramsgate to Buxton owing to the terrible air raids and will be very much larger here than it was there. We shall have 500 more wounded lads to care for than we yet had and that means an increasing demand upon my "wounded soldiers' fund." Will you kindly convey my very sincere thanks to all who helped to make this gift to my fund, and tell them why it is so especially valuable to me at this time. I have been so generously supported in my work by the people of St. John and of the province. I appreciate it more than I can express. I am, Sir, very truly, your obedient servant, E. BERTRAM HOOPER, (Major), ("The Padre").

FAIRVILLE NURSE REVIEWS HER WAR EXPERIENCES

Miss McKiel Gives Address At Reception

Holds Gathering in Church of Good Shepherd Hall Tensely Interested as She Speaks of War Work in France and Saloniki

Nursing Sister Theodora A. McKiel was tendered a reception last evening in the hall of the Church of the Good Shepherd. Not only were members of the congregation present but many friends of different faiths gathered to welcome Miss McKiel who has been on active service since 1914.

Most of those present were old friends or at least acquaintances and needed no formal introduction. Where courtesies of this kind were necessary, however, Rev. W. P. and Mrs. Dunham graciously acted. After a short address of welcome by the rector, who aptly described this as Nurse McKiel's home-coming, Rev. Mr. Dunham called on Miss McKiel to address the gathering.

It is true the room had been tastefully decorated and many old time friends met here after considerable lapses of time, but the attention of the audience was not diverted for one moment from the trimly uniformed nurse who for more than an hour and a quarter held her hearers in closest attention.

Commencing her story from the departure of the first Canadian Contingent, Nurse McKiel told how she was one of the 100 Red Cross nurses on the "Francisco" which also carried the staff of officers and occupied the centre of the greatest fleet which ever left Canadian shores.

The arrival in England, hearty reception by the populace and officials, then the kindness of nurses in St. Thomas' Hospital to the Canadian ladies was recalled. The winter of nursing the "Canucks" many of whom had contracted trench fever and rheumatism owing to the dampness of the camps through incessant rain as told of, and then the orders to proceed to France. The crossing and landing in the land of the fleur-de-lis were recounted graphically and then the appointment to active hospital work.

Miss McKiel mentioned that her patients were mostly British Tommy's, and how at the Battle of Ypres, when the men came in they had a haggard look, were worn and tired to a point where they almost drifted to sleep while having their wounds dressed. She said it was remarked that so many old men were being admitted to the hospital, but after ten days or so that appearance left them, and the men showed themselves to be young, not old. It was the terrible experiences through which they had gone that seemed to age them. With tender care these heroes were nursed back to health and strength.

In a simple way the nurse told of the indomitable spirit of the Tommy's, of the "sagging" nurse, and a smile of gratitude for favors. No wonder as these touching incidents were recalled that the sympathy of her audience was touched and moist eyes testified lustily to heart stirrings.

For sixteen months in France, Nurse McKiel was recalled to England where she was stationed at a convalescent home from which she was ordered to proceed to Saloniki, being one of a staff of nineteen nurses and a matron who composed the party.

The trip was briefly referred to, then the tented hospital a couple of miles from Saloniki, the convoys of wounded, the terrible heat, in which the nurses have cooked eggs in twenty minutes by just exposing them to the sun's rays. The sand storms in their penetrating fierceness were all in the discourse.

Then the bombardments by German Taubers was described; how the whistles blew on the approach of the hostile aircraft, the nurses running to the dug-out shelters, and the fearful wreckage of another hospital two and a half miles away and the awful casualty list among the wounded who were unable to get to safety; also the methods of sending the walking patients on the hills, spread out to escape dangers such as possible. The return from the Far East and Naples, Rome, Paris and other interesting cities were touched upon briefly and usually the return to London, securing two weeks rest then seventeen days leave back to home in Canada.

Miss McKiel said that she returned on a hospital ship on which there were thirty-five men who had been prisoners of war in Germany, and when asked what the treatment was like they replied "only one word can describe it, Hell."

The arrival at Halifax even was not without its incidents of interest, and when the address was finished, the audience could hardly realize that it could be given to one woman to see so much of travel, misery and suffering, pass through so many dangers as this heroic nurse who, within another couple of weeks will be back again on duty.

Words fail to describe the tense interest of Miss McKiel's listeners, but the silence was eloquent testimony of the great place these things are taking in the minds of the people.

Nothing was said of her personal hardships. Her praise of the men was unstinted and she spoke of her duties as privileges.

At the conclusion of her address, Miss McKiel showed many interesting souvenirs of the war as well as articles purchased in cities visited.

Refreshments were served and the national anthem brought the evening to a fitting close.

THE SOLDIERS' FRIENDS

The Standard appears to be much worried over the alleged failure of the Foster government to look after returned soldiers. As a matter of fact the government has done and is doing all in its power to aid in placing returned soldiers in positions for which they are fitted.

But what about the Standard's friends? Just before the union government was formed there were six watchmen to be appointed for duty at West St. John. It was urged that soldiers be appointed. This was refused. It was then urged that at least half of them be soldiers. This also was refused by the patronage dispensers and six civilians were appointed.
