BOARD OF CONTROL
It is to be regretted that through incomplete reports of last night's meeting of the reorganization committee, citizens were given a wrong impression of the opinion of those members who are endeavoring to provide St. John with a better system of city government.

There are very good reasons why the appointment of the board of control should not be vested in the mayor. On the other hand, it must be apparent to all that if the board is chosen by the citizens as a whole the success of every present members who in spite of their ability to run an election are not looked upon as of the proper material for positions of responsibility.

NEW BRUNSWICK'S MINERALS
There has been issued from the office of the King's Printer, Ottawa, a publication which is described as the "first attempt to collect and publish full statistics of the mineral production and of the mining and metallurgical industries of Canada."

WAR FEVER STRIKES THE STAGE IN SERBIA
Patriotism Runs Riot in Realistic Play, and the Audience Goes Wild With Enthusiasm.

BELGRADE, Jan. 20.—Remarkable scenes were witnessed last night in the National Theater here during the presentation of a play by M. Nushich dealing with the exploits of the Bosnian hero, Hadji Lova, who resisted the Austrian occupation of his native province and fell shouting, "Drive them out!"

After the last act the customary wreath prepared for the author was waved aside and he accepted instead from a group in the audience a new quick-firing rifle. It was with outstretched arms and a look of intense interest that he bowed his thanks.

of manganese. And there are known occurrences of bituminous coal, bituminous shale, petroleum and peat, also graphite, salt, infusorial earth and silica. It is true that many of these substances have been found only in small quantities but very little prospecting or development work has been undertaken to actually determine their extent.

THE PARIASH
He walks alone, the long, sad day,
The loneliest of lonely souls,
When people see him come their way,
They quickly crawl into their holes,
Or climb the nearest eucalyptus,
And, shrieking, reach the highest limb;

I hold that I am brave as most,
And I would face the Russian bear,
Or track the polar bear to his lair;
But upward my two hands I fling
When this weird man comes up to say,
"I want to tell a clever thing
My little Willie said today!"

"Yes, this room is dark, damp,
And positively unhabitable,
For your wife's mother, if she has one,
"She has, I'll take the flat!"

Tom-Belle is a strange girl. She doesn't know the names of some of her best friends.
Maud—That's nothing. Why, I don't even know what my own will be a year from now.

"You want to get dressed, I suppose," said the lawyer to whom Mrs. Donovan's husband escorted her on the day after she and Mrs. Leahy had indulged in a little discussion of opinion.

"Damages!" echoed Mrs. Donovan, shrilly. "Have I got damages here, or haven't I?"

St. Patrick was driving the snakes out of Ireland.
"If you take my advice, young men," he said to the reporters, "you won't write this up—you'll get the reputation of being snare fakers."

SCORES FAITH CURES, GOOD LUCK SMILES
Principles of the Emmanuel Movement Denounced by Sir Dyce Duckworth
Faith Treatment Only Permissible as an Adjunct of Ordinary Medical Practice.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—The principles of the Emmanuel movement, to say nothing of those of the Christian Science, are severely scored by the eminent physician, Sir Dyce Duckworth, in a paper written for delivery at the Westminster Luncheon Conference.

Speaking as a devoted Anglican churchman, as well as a physician of forty years' experience, practice, and teaching, Sir Dyce denounces as dangerous and un-Christian the doctrine that faith can take the place of competent medical treatment. He declares that he has yet to witness any appreciable benefit secured by faith in cases of disease; but has, on the contrary, witnessed serious harm from withholding rational treatment.

THE AMERICAN MOVEMENT.
"As regards this new doctrine, he says, 'we first find that it comes from America. That to my mind at once arouses suspicion. It comes from Boston, a city I know of having twice visited it—a city which is a perennial source of false doctrine and which produces and contains more unstable men and women than any other city I know.'

But the English physician does not rest his attack on this modern application of the argument. "Can any good thing come out of Gallilee?" He declares that most of the alleged cures are readily explained. In not a few of them the ordinary remedial measures were not called in, for the sufferers were nervous and unstable, had bodies, highly sensitive and impressionable, and readily influenced by strange minds, especially those of the light and airy type, and the administration of the physician's efforts. Physicians recognize such cases and often succeed in lifting them to their normal plane of life, both bodily and spiritual."

Sir Dyce remarks that a layman's opinions concerning cancer and tuberculosis and their alleged cure is worthless. Many innocent tumors, which disappear in the regular course of nature, have figured as deadly cancers cured away by the faith-healer. Again in connection with cancer, he says, "We dare not let it enter the minds of our people that it is a disease which is progressive and fatal. Every physician is aware of the power resident in inspiration and suggestion that it enters the minds of recuperative power in the patient."

Dr. Duckworth quotes Oliver Wendell Holmes, "Charlady's hobbles along mainly on her two sticks of the credulity or Herget's credulity, which is an alarming sign of the times the astounding credulity found among bishops and clergy and among judges and lawyers, to say nothing of women."

He eloquently argues that the results of centuries of honest medical study and experience are as truly gifts of God as are fully charged with power as were the methods of the Early Church. "We dare not suppress our knowledge and hold our hands in assisting nature's processes in the way we know by experience to be useful."

ON GALLANT SOLDIER
Veteran of Many Wars, Once Desitute, Marries Woman of Wealth.
Saving His Comrade's Life in Zululand Brings Reward After Years of Penury.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—A romantic wedding took place yesterday when Colonel "Maori" Browne was married to a lady of wealth and position. The story of this love match is as remarkable as anything in the pages of fiction, and seldom has the wheel of fortune turned more rapidly for a man.

Three months ago Colonel G. Hamilton Browne—"Maori" Browne to all his friends—was stranded in London, and appealed for any work, no matter how humble.

The Salvation Army helped him in his search for employment, and the colonel, who had served his country all over the empire, offered through the Express to black boots for a living.

He was left at the age of sixty-three without a pension, as he had commanded only irregular troops, and for three weeks he had lived by the sale of his medals.

Then Colonel Browne, who had served his country for forty years and been through the Zulu war and Matabelé campaigns with distinction, was almost starving in a lonely London lodging.

At this point, when things looked at their blackest the colonel's luck turned. One day a letter came from a woman asking if he was the same Hamilton Browne who had served in Zululand with a man whose name she gave.

She wished to know, because Hamilton Browne had saved the life of this man, who was her sweetheart. Colonel Browne recalled the incident and wrote to her, telling what he remembered of it.

SAYS SHE'S A SLAVE, ASKS FOR DIVORCE
Threatens to Carry Brand-New Point to the Supreme Court.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Mrs. W. Edward Strong, in filing her suit for divorce, makes the plea that she is a slave, and is being held in involuntary servitude in violation of the thirteenth amendment to the constitution.

Women relatives of Mrs. Strong are said to be socially prominent and allied with the suffragist movement and to have supplied funds for the legal proceedings, part of Mrs. Strong's complaint involving allegations of her husband's inability to adequately supply their domestic needs. Mr. Strong is of English birth.

Mrs. Henrietta Woods, her counsel, is chairman of the membership committee of the Interurban Woman Suffrage League.

"We want to get this case into the Supreme Court of the United States," Mrs. Woods said yesterday, "but do not expect immediate success. Lack of a legal right to control one's time, effort and personal liberty constitutes servitude as forbidden by the constitution."

"My husband and I are simply indifferent to each other," said Mrs. Strong. "He is here able to support himself and family. If our family were to increase, we should be in want. I am tired and feet, because my domestic duties leave me no time. I investigated my rights in seeking a divorce last year and found that I have none except for one cause. I am simply working and wasting my life in ungenial surroundings and without any recompense. My life and my labor are real unwilling servitude."
