CCI working for "one world"

Canadian Crossroads International is working for the ideal of "one world". Its goals include developing working relationships with local families and groups, mutual respect and understanding between cultures, and a chance for Canadians to experience a different culture and different ways of living. Crossroads will hopefully return with a somewhat different view of the world situation as well as being more sensitized to the causes and consequences of underdevelopment.

Crossroads is a private non-profit organization which operates totally by volunteers both in Canada and in other countries. While overseas, participants serve on projects in education, health care, youth leadership, agriculture, community development and construction.

This year, two fourth year Saint Thomas students, Kim Rogers and Kevin Heenan have been chosen to participate as volunteers. Kim, a French and Spanish BA Student native to Hamilton, Ontario, is going to Costa Rica in September. She is eagerly awaiting this placement as she will be able to use her Spanish skills. Kevin, a Social Work student native of Saint John is going to Saint Vincent, a small island in the Caribbean also in September. There he will use his skills that he has learned dealing with delinquent children.

As part of their commitment to Crossroads, Kevin and Kim must each raise $1400. To date, they have held a successful raffle with Bob Rice, of 75 Greenfields Drive being the big winner. The prize he won was the personal cleaning services of Kevin and Kim.

Two film nights have also been organized. "Young Frankenstein", a Mel Brooks horror comedy was shown to an enthusiastic crowd on March 14. Another film, "The Big Chill" is being shown on Sunday March 24, 7 and 9 pm in Tilley 102, UNB Campus.

Admission $2.50. We hope you can all come to enjoy this film as well as support our two Crossroaders. If you would like more information regarding the film or about Crossroads contact Lori at 457-0633.

Reallocation is waste of money

By BARRY PARKINSON

The university is playing with us. As is probably smeared on the pages of this publication, there are plans afoot to "reallocate" space. Yes, it was the standard routine; "space engineers" — or whatever they're calling the scientific management-types these days — were flown in from Toronto and let loose on campus. Now we're being asked to live with their twisted conception of efficiency.

There is no doubt that this university has a serious lack of space. Every year classes have to get shuffled down in rooms reservations. Every morning, frustrated drivers get to carry out the ritual search for a parking space. Back in the 70's there was what appeared to be a fairly intelligent plan to reorganize the campus. It was more or less scrapped, of course, seeing as it cost a few bucks. Now this. The present proposal was supposedly thought out with the idea of making better use of available space. So why is it that "wood frame structures and mobile units are recommended for removal" after their present occupants are moved in "appropriate" accommodations?

Who the hell came up with this idea? What we're being given is a juggling of office space with some valuable buildings being needlessly sacrificed into the process. We are going to have less space than we have now. This is ludicrous.

For some reason, someone has figured that they could get away with this foolishness. Many of these proposals are ridiculous beyond belief and, unfortunately, it looks as if we are going to have to spend time and energy to fight them.

Maybe a counter-proposal is in order. Why not rip down the Old Arts Building and squeeze the Administration into a corner of D'Avray Hall, or some other far-off place where they can't do any harm?

Hey, it makes more sense than what they're asking for.

Business business

-Business Society Notes-

The Business Administration Society recently held elections with the following positions acclaimed or elected:

President Tim Legere
 Treasurer Chris Burnley
 Secretary Gabrielle Langer
 Special Events Phil Dixon
 Promotion Marg Langelaan
 Faculty Liason Tim Kennedy

Rep. Heather Kennedy
 The executive has met and determined its objectives stressing the "implementation of student services" as a major goal. Currently, operating structures are being set up, posting of office hours and the construction of an activity calendar.

At the next general meeting (to be held April 3, at 3:30 in T5), constitutional amendments will be considered. The major proposed item concerns membership. The change would see all Business students become members of the Society automatically.

Finally, two items of concern are the upcoming "Outstanding Business Student Award", and the production of a Business student newsletter. For further details on both, come to the Business Society Office, 3rd floor, Tilley Hall. P.S.: Keep an eye open for a Jello eating competition between the students and the faculty!
