

XII. DECEMBER hath XXXI. Days. 1790.

RECITATIVE.

At humble distance thus to tell your pain,
 What thou'd you meet but coldness
 and disdain?
 Reply'd the laughing Fair--Observe
 the snow,
 The Sun retir'd, broods o'er the vale
 below;
 But when approaching near he gilds
 the day,
 It owns the genial flame, and melts
 away.

AIR.

Whining in this love sick strain,
 Strephon, you will sigh in vain;
 For your passion thus to prove,
 Moves my Pity, not my Love,
 Phœbus points you to the prize,
 Take the hint--be timely wife;
 Other arts, perhaps, may move,
 And ripen Pity into Love.
