TRADE NOTES.

PLOWING BY GASOLINE POWER.

At the Minnesota State Fair held at St. Paul last year, a gasoline traction engine was exhibited in actual operation at the work of plowing, an illustration of which we publish on another page. The engine is one of the Waterous Company's 25-horse-power engines, manufactured at the company's works, St. Paul, Minnesota. This machine, it is said, furnished sufficient power to draw eight plows of 14-inch furrow without the slightest hitch or difficulty. The plows consisted of two Moline gangs of four plows each, and the machine travelled at a speed of three miles an hour. The engine is well under control, and by means of a unique and very simple reversing gear it can be moved backward or forward as quickly as a steamer. Steel gearing transmits the power from the engine to the driving wheels. Both the working and the work accomplished was in every way a success. We are indebted to the Waterous company for our illustration, which is taken from a photograph of the actual working of the engine and plows on the field.

SUNLIGHT LAMP.—Evolution has proceeded in the matter of artificial light to such a degree that long ago it was though the climax of excellence had been attained. The angle lamp for sale by Messrs. Hilton, Gibson & Co., 280 Sherbrook St., Winnipeg, is certainly an advance in the science of lighting. It gives a bright light and throws no undershadow. It is not much more expensive than a common kerosene lamp, and the extra brilliancy of light more than compensates for the extra cost. The lamp is giving great satisfaction, not one of the many sold having been returned, though this opportunity is given to dissatisfied customers. The lamps are highly suitable for churches and public buildings. Angle lamps have been set up with much satisfaction in Treherne Methodist Church, in Yorkton Methodist Church, and in the Baptist Mission Hall, Winnipeg. Everywhere the angle lamp has gone it has been received as a boon.

MASSEY-HARRIS CO.—In all countries where the plow has made an impression, the name of Massey-Harris is well known. Particularly is this so in Western Canada, for on almost every farm one or more of this enterprising and successful company's implements is to be seen. A visit to the company's warehouses in Winnipeg gives one a complete index to farming methods in the West, for here one sees every implement that the heart of an up-to-date farmer could desire, for every one of them is built to serve a useful and profitable purpose. They are not all built like the patent medicines, each one to do all and every kind of work, but for every season and for every job to be done on a farm the Massey-Harris Co. can supply a machine or implement to execute the work or complete the job in a manner as near to perfection as it is possible to arrive. Apart from exclusive farming, they also supply buggies and luxurious rigs of every type and description. A large stock of mowers, binders and rakes has been distributed to the company's agents all over the West, where buyers can be supplied on the fair and easy terms of the company, with up-to-date articles for the hay crop and harvest of 1903. Beautifully illustrated catalogues will be given to all farmers who call upon the agents, and visitors are always treated with genial courtesy who call at the Winnipeg offices and showrooms.
