

HAPPY WAITING TIMES.

"It's only a week to wait now, till the Sunday-school festival," said Belle to Susie. "I do wish the day were here, don't you? We're going to have such a good time, nicer than ever before. I can hardly wait."

"I want it to come too," said Susie, "but I don't want to hurry it, 'cause I like to think about it beforehand. Then, I'm glad it isn't to-morrow, for Cousin Grace wouldn't be well enough to go, you know. She is getting better very fast, and in a week the doctor says she may go out. I go over every day to help amuse her and keep her from getting tired of staying in, and the time flies so fast I don't mind having a week to wait."

This is the happy secret of making a waiting time pleasant. Think of someone else, do something for another, take unselfish pleasure in waiting for another to be ready to share the good time, and the days of waiting will be short.

TIRED, NERVOUS, SLEEPLESS

Men and women—how gratefully they write about Hood's Sarsaparilla. Once helpless and discouraged, having lost all faith in medicines, now in good health and "able to do my own work," because Hood's Sarsaparilla has power to enrich and purify the blood and make the weak strong—this is experience of a host of people.

—Hood's Pills are the best family cathartic and liver medicine. Gentle, reliable, sure.

—The reason why our lives are so fragmentary and meaningless is that we live them as if they were our lives only and do not centre them in God. We must unite ourselves to the Greatest if we would live in any great or glorious way. In union with the Strongest is our strength.

NOW READY.

HALL CAINE'S
GREATEST STORY
'THE CHRISTIAN.'

This is a drama of frail human nature aspiring to perfection, and struggling to attain the highest ideal. The story opens in the Isle of Man, but the action takes place for the most part in London, and the author's strenuous preparation for this book is suggested by the succession of moving and dramatic scenes from a strange and unknown life in the world's metropolis. His mastery of the human drama has never been shown so forcibly. The romance throbs with life, and the emotional force of these pictures of aspiration, temptation, love and tragedy, reaches a height which will make a lasting impression upon the literature of our time.

"His greatest work, 'The Christian' is really a great novel. It is evidently the result of some of the problems of modern society, which it is the business of the Church to solve, which it has been long attempting to solve, but the solution of which, unfortunately, seems to be as far off as ever."—Toronto Mail and Empire.

"In 'The Christian' Mr. Hall Caine depicts the types of mind and character, of creed and culture, of social effort and religious purpose which he sees in the life of England and America at the close of the nineteenth century. The work will therefore be of interest to a much wider circle than mere readers of fiction."—Toronto Globe.

"From start to finish 'The Christian' is of absorbing interest; it is undoubtedly his greatest work, and dealing as it does with the vital questions of the day, will afford much food for earnest thought among those who have the welfare of their fellow-beings at heart."—Toronto World.
