DEMAND FOR ACTION

Col. Sam. Holmes points out that the boats sucking sand up the river should be compelled to put out buoys marking the spot. About three years ago three little lads lost their lives up the river by reason of the sand-suckers deepening the river where they had been accustomed to swim. The fatal accident last Thursday night when Miss Harris lost her life was undoubtedly due to the same cause, as Mr. Holmes states that he saw a boat taking sand at the same spot only a short time ago. The Government, the County or the police should do something to protect the public. The fatality list so far totals four, and it looks as if this were bad enough for any Government to take action. If a man's life belongs to society the state should protect that life.

At the time the three boys were drowned, the coroner's jury advised that measures be taken to protect the spots dredged out or deepened but no attention was paid to the recommendation and the result was the fatal accident last Thursday night. We can look with horror on the rotten condition of the life preservers and the fire appliances on the General Schoon and we can hold up our hands in horror at the criminal negligence of American officials, while under our very noses just as bad a state of affairs exist even if the death rate is in a much smaller scale.

By-laws to provide waterworks, purchase an electric light plant and build new granolithic walks were carried at Thamesville.

The trouble with the people who are satisfied to take things as they find them, is that they seldom find them.

John Used to Get Angry.

At one time there was an Englishman in India, John Nicholson, who in his own proper person was worshipped as a god in spite of his protest. Such a hold had his powerful personality taken upon the native mind that a strong sect of worshippers persisted in regarding him as a god. If, however, one of the Nikkaseyn fakirs so far lost control of himself as to offer worship to the deity in person Nicholson was in the habit of ordering him to receive a dozen lashes, a fact which did not in the least interfere with the worshippers' belief in his divinity.

When Nicholson was killed some of the worshippers slew themselves upon his tomb, but the remainder went over in a body to Christianity, saying, "Our god told us that he was but a man, and now we see that it was true. We wish, therefore, to be Christians as he was."

What a "Sotnia" Is.

"A sotnia of Cossacks" has been frequently referred to by correspondents of late, and everybody perhaps does not know what a "sotnia" is. It is a term which has a social as well as a military application and among the Cossacks means what "hundred" in local Government used to stand for in England, says The New York Globe. For war purposes the mounted Cossacks are organized in "polks," or regiments, of light cavalry about 900 strong and formed usually of six "sotnias." The English military equivalent is squadron.
