MEEDE EEDING BEED

a Baronet of Nova Scotia, whees diploma dated from 1625.

The family of Mrs. Slumpkin De Jobbyus consisted of three daughters, the eldost Miss Victoria, of whom more anon, was in her nineteenth year, and Alison's two pupils, Irene and Isenth. Like the rest of the snobcoracy of the Metropolis she believed in double names, thus she figured in the Royal Blue Book as Mrs Slumpkin De Jobbyus, a style of address which would have astonished her late husband, worthy old David D. Jobbyus, as he called himself, when for many a year he was acquiring wealth as an industrious soap boiler in Bow East, and when, he married pretty little Sally Slumpkins, the barmaid of the Black Swas in Mile-End Road, and when she little fores whow wealthy a "relict" she would be left.

Pretty Sally, who had, of course, we would be left.

Pretty Sally, who had, of course, preferred the worthy scapboiler to his rival the potman, had now amid ease and much sool living, expanded into a chart.

perred the worthy sospholier to his rival she potunan, had now smid ease and much good living, expanded into a stout, blousy, and coarsely feastured matron, greatly puffed up by wealth, success, pride and vacity.

She always wore the richest materials and the most massive jewellery, and never omitted to figure in her open carriage in the Row, when weather permitted, and strove hard in everything to spe all the massers of the "upper ten," in which sho was fully seconded by her eldest born, Miss Victoria S. DeJobbyns, a rather pretty, but very insing girl, who were her hair friesed into her eyes, and had a nose more then retrouse, for though she was pretty, as we have said, here features were nevertheless of the genuine Cockney type.

Alison took all her mealsjin the schoolroom with the children, and at the early hours which were directed for them. She was never in the drawing-room—the British drawing room," that sanotum sacred to Mrs. DeJobbyns and her 'swell' visitore, as she called them, and when she thought it was "rather the thing" to have afternoon tee in dragon blue and white crockery on a beautiful Chippendale tabl.
Andeo, for thirty pounds per annum,
Alison underwent this life of mortification.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and trying with pain of cutting teeth? It so, go at once and get a bottle of Mas. Winslow's Soorenes Staup. Its value is inealculable, it will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentry and diarrhoes, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mas. Winslow's Soorene System on Children Terrhing is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and purses in the United States, and is for sale at all druggists throughout the world, price 26 cents a bottle. ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

our Canadian Silk Industry is prosperous. The great difficulty to be contended with is the low grade of goods required. In nothing is this more apparent than in the comparatively small article of sewing silks. The great demand in Canada seems to be for a cheap quality, buyers forgetting that a cheap thread must necessarily be a fine and consequently a weak one. Messrs. Belding, Paul & Co. make three grades of spool silk; of these different qualities the poorest one has by far the largest sale, at the same time they constantly hear of complaints of poor sewing silk. If ladles will take the treable to ask for Belding, Paul & Co. cown brand, and see that their name to on the end of each spool, they will be sure of getting the best brade. Our Canadian Silk Industry ad see that their name is on the end of each ool, they will be sure of getting the best acle.

Twonty years old boday—breatly gashed in the little mirror, and hought tow pale and how much older than her age ahe looked in her plain black mourning dress, which was destines of other ormanient than smooth white ours and a runner rill of lace, or some such soft material, round her slender throat.

Vividly came back to the girl's memory her other birthday, ere poverty fell upen her father, and ere the was—as now—alone in the world, and when each recurring amiversary found her loaded with coarsess, congravitations, and pretty presents. And she could recall her fourth birthday at Essimont, when she was a little child in a white embroidered frock, with a broad sash matching the colour of her dark blue eyes, with her broaders Ranald and Ellon, esting strawberries off a barge salver held for them by Archie auchindoir, who seemed an old Archie even then.

Never more would the kisses or careases of father or mother touch her brow or there.

Never more would the kisses or careases of father or mother touch her brow or of those who have to earn their daily bread as a governess on thirty pounds per sannum, teach French, English, and music to two little gir s of the ages of nine and ten respectively.

And sadly on this day she thought of all the besident with the state of the policy.

The state of the ages of nine and ten respectively.

Another father and music to two completepernaps unconsciously, by the complexed and the underbred, the time had slipped quickly away.

Thus condemned to the dull dudgery of daily teaching a couple of troublesome, peevish, and ill-tempered brats in that bare and comforties school-room, was Alican, a loving and passionate girl, made more passionate, loving, and tender by the sore gries she had known, but all ansoured by these and the doubtful prospective, the atter blank of her fature.

Though the change of condition was not much to Alison, the change of position and that vacuity of the future were frightful to the poor girl; and in taking the situation for the sake of her father's name and his old family pride, though he was now in his grave, she had be sought the visar of Obiloote, in recommending her to Mrs. S. De Jobbyns, to conceal what she had ever been—nay, was still—the daughter of a Baronet of Nova Scotia, whose diploma dated from 1625.
