Liberal Association on Un restricted Reciprocity.

At the late meeting of the Liberal Association of this county, the newly elected President, Mr. J. J. Anderson, in advocating the doctrine of unrestricted reciprocity, enforced it by reference to the hay business. The larger markets of New England, would in his opinien, offer a most profitable method of disposing of our surplus it attempts, now that the scheme is At the late meeting of the Liberal ped to a large extent.

While allowing these two authorities to settle between themselves whether it is desirable to obtain Un restricted Reciprocity in order to impoverish our farmers, or not, we wish point out that in the reports of the iberal meeting there was a notable market for beef is even more important than hay, and it is singular that the leader of the Liberals, who is himself a cattle raiser, made no reference to the advantage of raising beef for the American market—say for Chicago. Why did he not refere the advantage of shipping oats to Boston and selling them there for 18½ to 22½ cts. per bushel, at a time when they were 45 cts. in St. John and Halifax. Indeed, it was only the duty of 10cts. per bushel that prevented our local markets from being demoralized by American oats.

But the entertainment of this view does not imply belief in the policy of unrestricted reciprocity, resurrected by Mr. Wiman and adopted by the Liberal party. It is clearly not consistent with the maintenance of the nolling interview of Consistent with the maintenance of the New England own.

It is not consistent with the material welfare of the Dominion that our industries should be exposed to the unframmeled competition of American manufactures; that retail stores from Halifax to Vancouver should, in the language of Congressman Hit, be filled with the product of American mills; that our import trade from mills; that our import trade from mills; that our import trade from manufactures the terminate of the controversy must now come from the United States, Having rejected one treaty, it will apparently devolve upon this country to propose something else.—Bradstreets.

—The proposed line from Mattan multise, that our import trade from mills; that our import trade from Helifax to Vancouver should, in the language of Congressman Hit', be filled with the product of American mills; that our import trade from Great Britain, which gives employment to shipping and sustains our ports, should at one stroke be reduced one-half; that a policy of direct taxation should be rendered necessary in order to maintain the public service; yet all these consequences are the inevitable fruit of interestricted reciprocity. We decline, moreover, to see in this policy, whose adoption is dependent wholly on the consent of a foreign nation, the sine qua non of Canadian progress and prosperity.

A reciprocity treaty is surely postationally and provided by the city Council of Monta to secure the city from inundation the latest partners.
