The Burin Manifesto.

Sir Edward Morris has now taken off the mask and thrown away disguise and in his speech at the opening of the Burin Agricultural Exhibition, as we pointed out yesterday, deliberately and intentionally, availed of the opportunity to deliver a political speech. That speech has been revised and yesterday it was published in large type in the Daily News. It will be re-issued in pamphlet form and circulated widely, as a weapon of political warfare in the interest of the party which he leads. It is Sir Edward's latest manifesto, and for convenience of reference can be mentioned in future as the Burin Manifesto. In it he recites most of the heads of his previous manifesto, nine-tenths of which have nothing whatever to do with the opening or holding of an Agricultural Exhibition, under the auspices of which he made this partisan speech.

A comparison of the planks of his Manifesto of March 1908 with those of his Burin Manifesto will show that he has now formally abandoned the plank which occupied so prominent a place in the former, viz., "Reduction of Taxation." In his former Manifesto it occupied the second place on the list. He has now another plank called "No Increased Taxation," but that he consigns to the last place but one. Both are travesties of facts. There has been no reduction of taxation, and there has been increased taxation. Another travesty of facts, which is even more amazing, is the avowal that—

"Since the assumption of office, principles of economy have been rigidly practised in the public service."

Why did not Sir Edward illustrate it by telling of the rigid economy practised in the payment of those enormous fees to himself and Mr. Morrison in the American Fishery dispute? Why did he not tell of the rigid economy practised in the payment of salaries, etc., to Messrs. Seymour, Downey and Devereaux? Why did he not tell of the money paid to Messrs. Goodison and Jordan Milley? Why did he not tell of the fees paid to Mr. O. Emerson, his colleague on the platform, for examining titles?

Why did he not tell of the principles of economy practised by the Minister of Agriculture in the distribution of timber grants among his well-to-do party followers? Why did he not tell that he found the Crown Lands Act too strict and that he had it altered to give the Executive Council greater liberty in dealing with grants?

The whole document breathes partisan politics. But it is avowedly but an interim manifesto, for Sir Edward states emphatically, "When we again seek your suffrages and support for a renewal of our term of office we shall be able to lay before you an attractive programme which will be your vindication for again entrusting the care of the country to our control and guidance."

Sir Edward, without doubt, is taking time by the forelock and preparing to shear political lambs; and after all he is not without experience in the raising of poultry. One is "to keep the poultry warm and feed them with warm mash, putting pepper in the food to make them lay well; the other method is much cheaper—a house one board thick, winter and summer, even when the thermometer shows 20 degrees below zero; two inches of coarse litter in which dry grain is scattered, and the poultry have to scratch to get a meal.

We do not desire to offer any opinion on Sir Edward's experience in the raising of ordinary poultry, but we willingly concede him much experience in the political poultry yard. The second method he declares much the better, and if anybody knows, he knows, I suppose. Since February 1909 he has gained experience in both methods. He has given abundance of timber, fat fees, fine pickings, warmth, comfort and an easy life to the select breed of Seymours, Downeys, Devereaux, Emersons, Gibbs and Morrisons. When he gives them pepper we don't know, nor of his success in the treatment. He is also experienced in the Cold Storage method: inch board houses, with cold grates and the scratch for a living for the common or barnyard fowl, whose eggs are votes. A fine feature of the latter method is that it is Canadian. Sir Edward commends it, but he practises both, as we have shown.

TRAIN NOTES.

Police Court News.

In the police court to-day 2 drunks were fined $1 or 3 days each. Another was fined $2 or 7 days and 2 were discharged.

Const. Tobin summoned Otto Oppelt on a charge of driving his auto without a tall lamp. Mr. Sullivan prosecuted but when sworn Otto showed to the court that the light was a new one (electric) that it worked splendidly all the summer but that since the rainy season set in it gave him much trouble and frequently went out unknown to him. Mr. Sullivan said the police did not wish to press the case and paid a tribute to the law abiding spirit of the Reid Ndg. Co. and as Otto was the pioneer chauffeur he appealed to him to set a good example. He remarked that the auto, by the neglect of the chauffeurs were giving the police much trouble. The case was dismissed with costs. Mr. Furlong, K.C., defended.

Man Went Overboard.

Shortly after 7 p.m. yesterday, but for the promptness of watchman Jerry Collins of Bowring's premises, an unfortunate drunk who was on board the Nellie Louise at the pier on the eastern side of the premises would have been drowned. He fell over the stern, Collins heard the splash and the man's cries, and jumping into a boat near went to the rescue. In the dark it was difficult to find the man, but he did so after a time and fished him out. The inebriate was sobered and exhausted from his emersion.

POSTUM

—A Rich Palatable Nourishing Food Drink

—that has taken the place of tea and coffee in thousands upon thousands of homes.

"There's a Reason."

There's a drug—caffeine—in tea and coffee which interferes with digestion and has a disturbing effect on the heart and nervous system, showing in some persons more than in others.

One can continue with the drug and pay the cost in physical suffering, or quit the return to comfortable health, provided the condition has not become chronic.

Postum offers an easy way to slip off the tea or coffee habit.

Then, with the cause of the trouble removed, Nature will properly take up the rich food elements in Postum for the rebuilding of the system.

Once started, you can keep on the road to increasing comfort, and you'll know

G. KNOWLING.

Uncle Walt THE POET PHILOSOPHER.

Great men have lived and done their stunts, and then they died, just like the ruts, and still the world wagged on; the sun went cally-hooting by, the same old way, across the sky, the night gave place to dawn. I sometimes think, when all swelled up until I'm like a poisoned pup, that when I come to creak, the stars will surely jump the track, the universe be out of whack, perhaps go up in smoke. I find it hard to realize that all the planets in the skies will travel just the same, that rain will fall and winds will blow, that there'll be dew and rime and snow, when I have jumped the game. It's hard for me to understand that I am but a grain of sand upon an endless shore; and when I'm blown into the sea the other grains may sigh for me—one sigh and nothing more. Ah, many men were called "the great"—their deeds the histories relate, but when they cashed their string, when each had shot his little bolt, the old world never felt a jolt, but just kept up its fling. There doesn't live so great a soul that when he dies he'll leave a hole in this old mundane place; our old friend Death cannot be beat as taking big chunks of conceit from out the human race.

GEO. KNOWLING

Canada Wellcome Duke of Cornwall

QUEBEC, Oct. 13.—A salute of twenty-one guns was fired from the Citadel at twenty minutes to one o'clock to-day announced that His Royal Highness, the Duke of Cornwall, had been sworn in as Governor General of Canada. The ceremony was a most impressive one. It was received in silence by the crowd of people in the Legislative Chamber of the Parliament building and there was no outbreak of enthusiasm until after the details of the reading of the oath, the presentation of the great seal, the signing of the proclamation, and the reading and reply to the addresses of welcome had been completed, that a manifestation was made, and then it was only when the Duke was leaving the Dias that the applause commenced.

CROWDS GREETED DUKE.

There was an immense crowd at the King's wharf to greet the Duke long before eleven o'clock when the ceremonies were scheduled to commence. When the hour arrived the firing of guns announced that His Royal Highness and party had left the Empress of Ireland and were aboard the Government yacht Lady Grey ready to disembark at the King's wharf which had been especially prepared for the occasion. A carpeted passage led from the gangway of the yacht through an arch to the carriages waiting in the street outside with the 8th Quebec Dragoons in readiness to form the guard of honor to the Parliament buildings. As the yacht approached Premier Borden and the Cabinet, Brigadier General Otter, Mr. Mulvey, the Under Secretary of State, General Mackenzie, Sir Lomer Gouin and most of the Quebec Cabinet approached to a point near the edge of the wharf and waited until the vessel had docked.

LANDED ON CANADIAN SOIL.—The Duke had a few minutes conversation with General Otter from the deck of the yacht then stood with the Duchess, his aide de camps and Miss Polley, Lady-in-waiting to the Duchess, who formed the rest of the party. They waited until everything had been made fast and then descended. The first to greet the Duke when he set foot on Canadian soil was Sir Charles Fitzpatrick then came Premier Borden and the Cabinet; Brigadier General Otter, Admiral Kingsmill, Sir
