Attempted Robbery Near Duart.

A daring attempt at highway robbery was enacted on the townline near Highgate on Friday morning. J. Hanley was driving from Thamesyille to Clearville for a load of fish early in the morning, when he noticed two men camped in the bush by a fire not far from the road. They hailed him, but he, failing to stop, they made frush for the rig, trying to intercept it at a point farther on. Mr. Hanley claims that he passed the point at a two minute clip, considerably ahead of them, but amid a shower of bullets, one of which passed through the top of this rig in close proximity to his head. As this is the second attempt at a hold up from the same quarter Mr. Hanley's story is fully accredited. The neighborhood is noted as a rough and lawless district. lawless district.

Another Scheme In View.

The big policeman at the foot of the stairway leading from the street to the Reading railroad's Spring Garden Street station had just finished telling that a guardian of the peace had more things to attend to in the line of his official duties than appeared on the surface when a good looking young woman, pushing a baby carriage, in which was seated an infant of perhaps 8 or 10 seated an infant of perhaps 8 or 10 months, approached him.

"Would you mind seeing that no one bothers the baby while I run up to the station?" she taked. The officer's face took on a stern exression.

"What do you want to go up to the station for?" be questioned severely. "To see the trains go by?"

"Oh, no," was the reply. "I just want a time table."

"Humph!" responded the bluecoat. "I'll go up and get the time table for you. Just wait and see that so one bothers the baby yourself."

But the young woman was half way.

But the young woman was half way up the steps by this time, and there was nothing for the policeman to do but stand by the baby carriage until she restand turned. She was gone a little longer, apparently, than she should have been just to obtain a time table, and the officer's anxiety increased with each passing moment. Finally, however, she came

The bluecoat muttered something to-the effect that he never had any such thought, and the young woman departed. "She was right, though, in thinking that you were afraid she was going to desert the infant," I said. "Come, now, own up. Wasn't she?"
