Following is the report of the Committee on Social Life:
Our first thought is home. Home ties or no ties. It is impossible to ignore home influences. There is a neucleus formed in every family to bless the world or curse it. Confucius said to rule the world he would begin with the family: let each family be well trained and the world is trained—well ruled, and the world is ruled. The word "social" suggests friendliness shown by association of at least two, but may extend to many. One home may be social in its own limits and largely ignore others. That is a limited sociality, not designed for the human family.
