little, if any, effect in this case, as the British government will place a proper value of them, and it is most unlikely that Unce Sam will commit himself to the task of re-lieving the pressure that is now making the burghers of the Dutch South African republies so uncomfortable. With Kimberley, Ladysmith and Mafeking once more freed from siege, Lord Roberts will pursue his campaign with much more comfort than hitherto, and probably with more noticeleate effect. It would not be surprising to hear of his troops celebrating the Queen's birthday somewhere in the vicinity of Pretoria.
