

Gen. Thomas was six feet in height, of commanding appearance, and well proportioned. Hannah, his wife, daughter of Nathaniel Thomas, of Plymouth, an intelligent and accomplished woman, died in 1819, at an advanced age."

The diary here printed will be perused with interest, particularly the portions which relate to the treatment of the Acadians. Those who wish to learn more on this subject are referred to the Nova Scotia Archives ("Selection from the Public Documents of the Province of Nova Scotia"), printed in 1869, under the editorship of Thomas B. Akins, D.C.L., and the History of Nova Scotia and Acadia, 3 vols., 1865-7, by Beamish Murdoch. A manuscript journal by Gen. John Winslow, commander of the New England troops in this expedition, which has never been printed, is in the possession of the Massachusetts Historical Society. Frederic Kidder, Esq., has collected a mass of materials on the subject, which will be published, if his health permits.]
