

that the salvation of our domestic and social life depends upon the re-introduction into it of His Spirit. There is no better time for us to begin than at Christmas, for that is the Festival of the Home, the hour when family joys and the sweet intimacies of friendship have their holiest manifestation. If we make Jesus our Guest, bring back again the dear memories of childhood, sing the carols that have been consecrated by centuries of use, then this first Christmas after the war will be the Birthday of a New Era for the Home and Society.
