FRENCH-CANADIAN MEMBERS PRAISE GOVERNMENT'S MOVE

New Ontario, its progress and development, was a subject that provided some interesting discussion in the legislature yesterday. T. R. Atkinson of North Norfolk, in a rather uneventful speech, blamed the way for the French-Canadian members and after that there wasn't a dull moment. Bilingual schools were under the hammer and the discussion extended to nearly every public policy of the government.

Z. Mageau, Sturgeon Falls, is a young French-Canadian member, who bids fair to be an excellent speaker. He is enthusiastic and knows conditions in New Ontario just as they are. Speaking of a Conservative hotelkeeper who lost his license and got it restored again on two occasions when elections were coming on, Mr. Mageau said he had no doubt that the provincial treasurer knew nothing about it. "I am of the opinion that somebody benefited by these occurrences previous to the elections. I wouldn't say who it might be, but I have my thoughts in French, although I don't express them. (Laughter.)" He maintained that it is at present, if this plan which the Conservative party had pledged themselves to in 1906 were followed.

While not complaining of the money spent on education, Mr. Mageau stated that the amount of money spent during the past few years on Toronto University was more than all the expenditure for bridges and roads thru New Ontario.

The Ottawa Member, Napoleon Champagne, Ottawa East, defended the government.

"Let us see," said he. "The Conservative party has a majority of 60. At four seats a year it will be 15 years before the leader of the opposition can sit on this side of the house. Before that time he will either have thrown up the job in disgust or he will have been fired out by his party. (Laughter.)

"The good old Conservative party and its progressive platform," said he, "is better than any sildy chicken the opposition can offer. Hon. Adam Beck's hydro-electric power policy, his painstaking work in connection therewith, is worth all the sneers and jeers of the opposition."

He paid a compliment to Mr. Rowell for his pre-election statement that the French people should not be deprived of the use of their mother tongue. Mr. Champagne assumed that the opposition leader was referring to schools in this regard, for "the French mothers will take care of that in their homes. They won't need politicians there."

After the publication of Mr. Rowell's campaign address referring to bilingual schools, The Ottawa Free Press hailed the new leader as a Moses. The Free Press is a Liberal paper and it can call Mr. Rowell a Moses one day and a Judas Iscariot the next. Mr. Champagne warmed up in his recital of N. W. Rowell's vacillating policy on this bilingual school question.

"If the Liberal leader did not favor the idea of teaching French in the schools, and then came and told me constituents they should not forget their mother tongue, I say then the mantle or Sir Oliver Mowat has fallen on the shoulders of a political Lilliputian." (Applause.)

"At that time," he continued, "if the law was against you, you were willing to break the law; if the law should be amended you were willing to trim it to suit your purpose—you were willing to give fair play to the people to whom you were talking."

Different To-Day.

"To-day it is quite different. To-day you stand up and say to the attorney general, who has said that bilingual schools are illegal—observe the law. The doubling and wheeling may be all right for the rank and file, it might do for the satellites, but it is unbecoming for a pole star, the general of the great Liberal party."

Quoting Mr. Marshall (Monk) as having said that he could see no reason why the public money should be spent in teaching French, Mr. Champagne declared that the fact of Mr. Marshall, with such narrow ideas, being still in public life, was not due to an act of the government, but to an act of providence.

The leader of the opposition thinks apparently that no government is any good that is not doing everybody and everything in sight. He thinks the art of gerrymandering and stealing ballots is going to be lost to posterity. Set under Sir James Whitney's administration, the people of the province have had a square deal. If the Liberals would get something square in their platform, they might win the next election, for anything square in a Liberal platform would take the people by storm. It would be such a surprise.

Beautify the Country.

"There is nothing so cheerful around home as trees," said T. R. Atkinson (North Norfolk) in resuming the long-drawn out address in reply to the speech from the throne. He urged reforestation, not only to provide lots of timber land, but also to beautify the country.

It seems to me that the government's policy in North Ontario for the past few years has been one of cut and slash," said he. "That's a nice place for a settler to try and locate and find a home." He recommended that every tree or sapling under 12 in. in diameter should be protected by the government and used for reforestation. He urged that appointment of an independent man to administer the $5,000,000 loan for the development of New Ontario.

In reply, R. A. Norman said the speech from the throne was one of the most momentous speeches of modern times.

CAN'T HELP LAUGHING A LITTLE.

Porfirio Diaz naturally is amused at the trouble Madero is experiencing in holding down the presidential job.

"IN HIS FATHER'S SUIT."

Colonel Winter Wimberley of Macon, Ga., enjoys a wide reputation as a story-teller in Georgia, that land of story-tellers, according to The New York Evening Sun.

Colonel Wimberley was once engaged in a case in which the plaintiff's son, a lad of 8 years, was to appear as a witness.

When the youngster entered the box he wore shoes several sizes too large, a hat that almost hid his face, long trousers rolled up so that the baggy knees were at his ankles, and, to complete the picture, a swallow-tail coat that had to be held to keep it from sweeping the floor.

This ludicrous picture was too much for the court, but the judge, between his spasms of laughter, managed to ask the boy his reason for appearing in such garb.

With wondering look, the lad fished in an inner pocket and hauled the summons from it, pointing out a sentence with solemn mien as he did so, "To appear in his father's suit," it read.

An Organ for a Song.

The old adage that one may buy an article for a song—or the price of a song—has illustration just now in the wonderful bargains that the old firm of Heintzman & Co., Ltd., 195-197 Yonge-st., are offering in high-class organs. This firm are neither manufacturers nor dealers in organs in the regular way, but in selling their famous pianos they are constantly taking organs in exchange. It is to their interest to clear them out of the warehouses as quickly as possible and some thirty-five now in stock have been marked at from $15 to $65 each, a mere fraction of the original price, and they may be bought on payments of 60c a week.

MISSIONARIES' EXCITING TIME

Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Robertson Were Under Fire All the Way Down the Yangtze.

After an exciting passage thru the fields of the Chinese rebellion, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Robertson arrived in Toronto yesterday from West China. All the way down the Yangtze River they were kept under fire of the imperial forces, who were surrounded by rebels. Their boat was punctured in several places and the having to dodge the bullets, they escaped without serious injury.

Mr. Robertson is a professor in the West China Methodist University and was one of the last to leave when ordered to Shanghai by the foreign consuls. They arrived at Shanghai one month after leaving Chengtu.

Mr. Robertson just spent a few hours in the city, calling at the Methodist foreign missionary offices, then going on to their home in Peterboro. They also visited at Chicago on their way homeward.

LOVE BANDIT HOLDS UP TRAIN.

PIEDMONT, W. V., Feb. 20.—With a score of armed men in pursuit, the lone bandit, who shortly before midnight held up the passengers in the sleeping car attached to the St. Louis-New York express at the point of a brace of pistols and took $100 in cash and much jewelry, is hiding somewhere in the foothills beyond Altamont. The spot where the trail was lost is well nigh inaccessible.
