Seasonable Recipes

Salt Pork (Country style)—Cut fat salt pork in quarter inch slices and score the rind in three or four places. Cover slices with boiling water, dip them one by one, on each side in sifted flour and let cook slowly in the frying pan until brown. If cooked slowly enough, the greater part of the fat will be extracted. Serve with creamed potatoes.

Nut Bread—Sift together three times, four cups of flour, one scant cup of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt and two heaping teaspoonfuls baking powder. Add one cup of nut meats, chopped fine, and one cup and a half of milk. Stir to a smooth dough. Turn into a bread pan and let stand twenty minutes. Bake about forty minutes.

Coconut Tea Cakes—Roll paste to one fourth of an inch in thickness, shape cakes like a lady finger, place on a tin and bake in a hot oven. When nearly done, brush over with beaten white of egg and sprinkle with shredded coconut. Return to oven to finish cooking.

The following dishes are examples of tissue-building and repairing foods in good combinations. Macaroni with cheese and milk, bread and rolls with milk. Creamed vegetables. Bread pudding containing eggs, milk, bread and sugar.

It is estimated that Sheffield, England, consumes approximately 500 tons of meat per week, of which about 100 tons is frozen and chilled.

WINDSOR TABLE SALT

NURSERY

A sound baby means a sound mind; and it is the duty of parents to see that their children are well equipped with the right kind of body if they wish their lives to be successful. Surely the solution of the problem concerning the boy; how he is to be cared for, what to do with him when he goes wrong, how to reform him, lies with the mothers of the babies to-day. I know it goes back farther than this, but until the state looks after the parents, the mothers will just have to do the best they can with the babies. So give the little man the best body you can, make him as fine as you can; and the big fellow should be just what you want. Let the mother grow up naturally, don't tease him to walk if he doesn't attempt it himself, don't teach him tricks. Baby's own actions are far funnier than any trick you could possibly show him. Above everything else, don't exhibit him to admiring friends to be handled and teased. Don't even let daddy play with him if he only shows him about 5 o'clock in the evening. For that is baby's bedtime and nothing should interfere with it.

Making Over

There are several features of the new gowns which lend themselves well to the home dressmaker's problem—making over. Gowns are to be made of two or more materials, and on skirts and waists there is a good deal of over drapery. Take an all-over embroidery dress of last year, leave the front and back panels as they are, but in place of the side gores, put three scant flounces after the style of the double and triple decker skirt of a few summers ago. To keep the flounce effect on the waist, add a fichu. The sleeves will be set in, but since this makes the long, plain shoulder just like the kimono sleeve, it is likely that the kimono sleeve will be quite as much worn as the newer style. The shoulder seam is usually concealed by trimming, so that if a new sleeve is necessary, it can be inserted, cut on the same lines as the old one.

Last year's skirt can be freshened wonderfully by a set of the new lingerie collar and cuffs. Good gowns of silk or chiffon can be made over with the aid of the popular and useful tunic.

A Bridesmaid's Gown

A charming gown for a spring wedding attendant is made of soft silk net, having the short-waisted bodice draped in surplice fashion into a narrow skirt of blue satin. The skirt is slightly full at the waist line and falls in graceful folds to the knee, where begins a series of very narrow flounces edged with lace. The effect is quite straight, but the flounce gives a grace and finish to the lower portion of the skirt. Over the shoulders is draped a fichu of net bordered with three narrow frills of net with lace edges. At the center of the bodice the fichu is caught at the high waist line with a large pink satin rose.

Miss Lena Adamson's Concert.

It was sufficient to scan Miss Adamson's program to form the opinion that the lady was a musical genius. Her selections to fill the evening were fully justified. She is an artist in those, to the display of her essential points, her finger-tips, and in difficult, beautiful music she was compelling in her power of expression. No less was she successful in the artistry of her technique. She played Tchaikovsky's "Serenade Melancholique" with a remarkable degree of insight and sympathy. In contrast to this number she gave later, Sarasate's brisk Spanish dance, "Zapateado" with bright pizzicato effects, with a gay abandon of melody suggesting an entirely different temperament. Sulzer's "Sarabande" was played with just the understanding of the dance a Spanish woman might have shown—and her rendering of Kreisler's record number—after his "Romance," which was not of the first class—the "Caprice Viennois" was bricked played and loudly applauded. The lady at the piano, Mrs. Gerard Barton, was in entire accord with the violinist and her work at the keys was, in all respects, as finished and appreciated as was that of her fellow artist. The combination was a satisfying success, and if the applause which followed each effort betokens these ladies to further efforts in the display of their own musical talents, it will be something for which musical Toronto may well be grateful.

The Elgar Choir.

To-morrow night Toronto will have the pleasure of hearing one of the finest choirs that has ever visited the city, when Bruce A. Carey, baritone, will give a concert in Massey Hall. Mr. Carey's organization have twice before, in Hamilton last week, and the reception accorded by their own people was very enthusiastic.

The program is a very interesting one, most having been performed by one of the other of our musical societies, and includes the "Ave Maria" (Grieg), "The Barcarolle" (Liszt), "The Night" (from "The Tales of Hoffman"), "Fly Singing Bird" (for ladies' voices), Gounod's "O. Day of Pentecost" and the "Water Lily" by Gade. Mr. Carey is having the assistance of Mr. Welsman and the Symphony Orchestra, who will contribute several numbers to the program.

PUBLIC AMUSEMENTS

The Big "Hanky Panky" Show.
Low Field's all-star, jollie follie, two-set "Hanky Panky" Company will begin a week's engagement at the Alexandra Theatre, commencing Monday, March 25. This army of fun-makers in this big musical jumble of jollification comes direct from a triumphant run of 300 consecutive nights in Chicago, where all records were broken for attendance and laughter.

The book is by Edgar Smith, the lyrics by E. Ray Goetz and the music by A. Baldwin Stone. The successful authors of "The Never Home," "Tillie's Nightmare," etc., "Hanky Panky" has no veneration for history or literature. Cleopatra appears concurrently with a sequelized Wallingford—known as Sir J. Rufus Wallingford, recently elevated to British peerage. Hugh Cameron is Wallingford, Flora Parker is Cleopatra, Carter De Haven is Blackie Daw, who turns against the ennobled Wallingford, and is his bitter enemy. William Rasmitt, in the person of Max Rogers, shares a large financial venture with Herman Beilweiser, presented by Bobby North. Their "angel" is Solomon Bumpkin, personated by Harry Cooper. Billy Montgomery, of Montgomery and Moore fame, appears as Rasmitt, and his talented wife, Florence Moore, plays Wallingford's time-writer, Clorinda Scribble. Myrtle Gilbert, Lillian Lett's, and 50 beautiful women, in many changes of costumes, with a lavish scenic equipment, complete one of the biggest shows on tour in the country to-day. Seats are now sale.

The Big Gaiety Company.
The Big Gaiety Company, who play at the Gaiety Theatre next week, starting Monday, will come here with the best of newspaper criticisms. The company is entirely new in its entire make-up, new faces, costumes, scenery, electric effects, etc. No pains or expense have been spared by the management to make the newest of shows the best of any attraction on the Coliseum Circuit. Mr. Gus Fay is the star, and the opening burlesque is "A Florida Enchantment." The excellent of the olio is one of the features, offering among others, Gus Fay, Eddie Lovett, Al Herman, The Madcap Musical Four, Clara Tucker, Abbie Poole, Vera and Benton and Al Bannan.

The Girls From Reno.
"The Girls From Reno," the merry, mischievous mixture coming to the Star next week, comes here with a very few exceptions, none by lovely members, the over-drawings of demimure, who in their gorgeous gowns and dazzling effects add materially to the splendour of the entire attraction. Some extremely rich electrical devices will be introduced in the grouping of the two acts of pretty girls who will be seen in many charming novel and most fascinating ensembles. The offering itself is in two burlesques, "Business is Business" and "High Life in Reno." The great sensation will be the duet in a new dance creation, which caused a great sensation in Paris, by Mlle. Polaire, and will be seen in its entirety, as produced in the French capital.

COOLINS AND BROWN.

The Grain of Dust.

Theatregoers of this city are to see one of the greatest successes of the season, for the general public, and the splendid company will appear at the Princess Theatre all next week in Louis Evan Shipman's dramatization of David Graham Phillips' most celebrated novel, "The Grain of Dust." Although the sale does not open until Thursday morning, orders have already started in, and the box office is said to be very full. The play is a story of a man who, after a long and arduous search, finds a grain of dust which is the key to a great mystery. Tetrazzini's Triumph.

Luisa Tetrazzini has just achieved another dazzling conquest in her triumphant tour of the British provinces, previous to sailing for America, the great diva was the most extraordinary enthusiastic praise from the press. The Glasgow Herald said: "The successful prima donna is not alone an extraordinary superlative, and there is little new to say of Madame Tetrazzini. She is still a power with the general public. The human voice is a wonderful thing, and where it is found in perfection of quality and training, it never fails to move us to delight. That it can exist in cold beauty is unfortunately true. Indeed, the performance of the coloratura soprano are seldom marked with the intensity of feeling, Madame Tetrazzini, however, has many qualities to add to her exceptional vocal gifts, not least, the power of dramatic interpretation, which includes a variety of emotion. The singer was at her best, and the purity, brilliance, power and flexibility of her voice struck one with fresh force. The Missions polonaise and the Yvande encore number were extraordinary displays of beauty and vitality, singing as well as exhibitions of technique. Madame Tetrazzini is more than a great coloratura singer, and her performance of the quieter numbers last night were hardly less enjoyed than those devoted more obviously to display. It hardly needs to be said that the singer had a complete success with the audience. Madame Tetrazzini seems to have quite filled the place in Glasgow long occupied by Madame Patti." The only appearance of this wonderful singer in Canada will be in Massey Hall April 16. Seats can now be secured at the Bell Piano Rooms, 144 Yonge-street.

A Kentucky Romance.

Adie Bessie, by her latest success, "A Kentucky Romance," will be the attraction at the Grand next week. The play develops an interesting plot of an artless girl who falls in love with and secretly marries the son of a proud widow, who had picked another bride for him. The widow learns of her son's supposed marriage, and she and her husband, who are in need of money, decide to secure a second marriage. This breaks up the first part of the romance. "Cynthia" goes to New York, becomes a star of Broadway, and Les Jamieson, her husband, travels abroad. But in the end, of course, many troubles adjust themselves satisfactorily. "A Kentucky Romance" is a four-act dramatic comedy sparkling with originality, clever lines and interesting situations, and is said to be the best of the season. The company in support include Joe Somers, Edna Dale, Sam J. Burton, Ted V. Arnold, Sadie Smith, Frances Young and Bertha Julian.

Countess Warwick.

The visit to this country of the Countess of Warwick is creating widespread interest, and the leading American papers are devoting columns of space to interviews with her. The Countess is a socialist and suffragist, and in an interview with a representative of The New York World the other day said: "The old idea of sex slavery is dying, but it is dying hard. More and more women are awakening to the desire for economic independence. If the majority really ruled, we still be in the jungle. Women will get the vote in England very soon, but with a proper qualification, such as now applies to men. Window-smashing, football, but nothing can retard the movement. The Countess will speak at Massey Hall on Friday evening, March 23, on the subject, 'The New Era in the Old World.'
