"Johnny Get Your Gun"

Edmund Lawrence Burke's farcical entertainment, "Johnny Get Your Gun," which ran for more than a year at the Criterion Theatre, New York, under the management of John Gert, after which it enjoyed a year's prosperity on the road, is rounding into splendid shape at the hands of the capable Robins Players, who will present it for the first time in stock next week at the Royal Alexandra Theatre, commencing with a special matinee Monday afternoon, Civic Holiday. Edward H. Robins will have the chief fun-making role, which is a part very suitable to his peculiar method of placing comedy lines and situations. Miss Frances Neilson will have the lead opposite him and the other members of the company will be ideally cast. Three matinees will be given during the week, the usual Wednesday and Saturday and a special matinee on Monday, Civic Holiday.

At the Hippodrome

Theda Bara, the inimitable William Fox star and peerless delineator of vampire roles, will be the feature attraction at the Hippodrome next week, when the management will produce the magnificent spectacle "Cleopatra." Over a half million dollars and fifteen thousand men and women were necessary for this wondrous production. Tom Nawn and Company will present the amusing comedy playlet, "Fat and the Genie." Eldora is one of the best jugglers in vaudeville today. J. C. Mack and Company will present the bright miniature musical comedy, "Mother Goose." Bell and Eva, "The Bouncing Girl at the Soda Fountain," present an exceptional novelty while the Nichols are featured in a singing and dancing specialty. Emily Earl, former musical comedy star, in new songs, dances, and a monologue, are also completed in the bill.

Loew's Theatre

In "Rough and Ready," Wm. Farum's newest de luxe production, announced for presentation next week at Loew's Theatre and Winter Garden, the star enacts the role of Bill Stratton, a mild-mannered disciplinarian, who is as straightforward in his dealings with others as he is himself. Rather than an untruth, he sacrifices himself to save the home of a friend from disruption. Frank Bush, a monologist, well-known to Toronto patrons as the man who carries a million tales at the tip of his tongue, will head a splendid all-around vaudeville bill. McAllen and Carson, late of the Winter Garden show, perform some wonderful terpsichorean steps on roller skates, besides giving an exhibition of whirlwind skating. A domestic comedy sketch with an unusual twist is "His Wife's Mother," presented by Arthur de Voy and players. The Vesper Duo, a musical specialty, cordialists, have an entertaining specialty. A musical feature from Ringling's Circus, De Dio's ponies, dogs, in fun, novelties and specialties in "Animal Land." Smith and Tosei, the "Dapper Darktown Dandies," in songs, patter and dances; the "Jazz and Joff" cartoonists and Loew's Universal Weekly are other features booked.

Reopening of Star

If you want to laugh long and hard, do not fail to go and see "The Tempers," at the Star Theatre, starting Saturday matinee. The show offers a surprisingly funny vehicle with most amusing situations and lines which are admirably interpreted by Max Field, Hebrew comedian, and Sid Winters, Irish comedian.

Harold Lockwood at Strand

Today will be the last day for seeing the charming Metro production, "The Whining of Beatrice," with May Allison in the leading role, at the Strand Theatre. For the first half of the coming week, the feature will be the exceptionally fine Metro production, "Lend Me Your Name," a lively farce comedy, adapted from Francis Perry Elliott's popular novel of the same name, with Harold Lockwood, "everybody's favorite," in the dual role of an earl and a burglar. This photoplay consists of five acts of rapid fire farce comedy replete with the most perplexing complications, and everyone who enjoys a hearty laugh should be sure to see it. Harold Lockwood gives so human a portrayal of his double role that he wins all hearts.

Clara Kimball Young

The alluring beauty of the great emotional actress, Clara Kimball Young, always adds to the attractiveness of her motion picture presentations. One can imagine with what enthusiasm she would enter into the stirring drama, "Hearts Affire" from the popular novel, "Hearts in Exile," by John Oxenham, the feature at the Regent Theatre all next week. It is, as presented in motion picture, a striking drama illustrative of that great and almost unknown portion of Russia known as Siberia. It is founded upon the life of a beautiful girl into whose life official Russia suddenly thrust itself. The police officer, determined to win her hand, sends human and protector into exile, but this did not make his dream come true although it started a

The Woman Who Changed

BY JANE PHELPS.

In Chicago.

CHAPTER VI

What a welcome we received! Both Mr. and Mrs. Babcock met us at the train, altho it arrived at a very early hour.

"You have grown handsomer than ever," Mr. Babcock said, as he kissed me—after asking George's permission. "Haven't she, mother?" he turned to his wife.

"Yes, I think she has," she returned, her head on one side as she inspected me, her eyes twinkling. "It must be the babies."

"It is," I replied, then launched into a description of them.

George had been cross with me for fretting over them, and I laughingly told her so.

"I know, dear," she said laying her hand over mine, "but you have such wonderful help, and you really must learn to leave them occasionally both for your own and your husband's sake. It isn't fair to either for you to give up everything to them."

I was glad George was beside Mr. Babcock, who was giving the car, so he couldn't hear us.

"But I never have left them, and I am so afraid they will get sick or that something will happen to them."

"Your husband loves them, and she asked, making me look at her in astonishment. The question was so unexpected."

"Of course! he almost worships them, all three."

"Then try to forget to worry, and let him enjoy his trip as much as is possible when business is his reason for coming. Believe me, we women sometimes make a mistake when we neglect our husbands for our children."

"—no matter how much we love them."

The Same Story.

"Everyone tells me the same story," I laughed, just as we reached the house.

"It is true," she answered soberly. "We had a most delightful time. They entertained us for a dinner and musicals, and Mrs. Babcock also gave a luncheon. She asked Julia Collins, as I persisted in calling her, and we really had a good time talking things over together. I never would have believed we could be so comfortable together."

She told me of her new home, and Mrs. Babcock and I accepted an invitation for tea the following afternoon. Her husband was on the coast, a business trip, she explained. But she told me she was ideally happy.

I suppose it sounds foolish to you, but I think no one ever was any happier than I am."

"That is because you do not curb your freedom, or require him to lose his individuality," Mrs. Babcock returned. "At one time of the night up in Maine when George had, said nearly the same thing. That one could not destroy another's individuality and be happy."

"Oh, I never would do that!" Julia laughed. "He might retaliate, and that never would do!"

That night we went to hear Paderewski. I never had heard him, and was overjoyed at the opportunity. But when, after the concert, Mr. Babcock presented him, I said to Mrs. Babcock:

"It was worth leaving the babies for."

How she laughed.

"I imagine you are a sort of hero worshipper, aren't you?" she asked me.

"Perhaps," I replied, thinking of Merton Gray and how at first, and even yet, he had seemed so awfully attractive to me.

At Last Perfect Content.

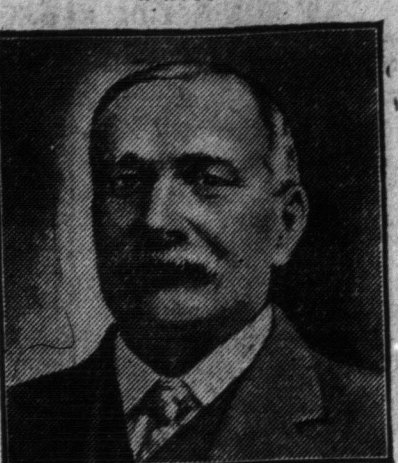

We remained three days. We had a delightful time, but most of all I enjoyed the long heart-to-heart talks I had with Mrs. Babcock. I told her of my boys, of how wonderfully happy I was now that I had learned some of the necessary things of life—to be unselfish, and to trust my husband.

"That is all there is to married life—happy married life, I mean. Unselfishness and trust. Without it no marriage can be happy, even if they do say that marriages are made in heaven. With it, nothing else matters much. I have watched you, dear, watched you change from a very sweet attractive girl, into a well-poised beautiful woman. You have a husband of whom you may well be proud; three lovely babies; and one of the most complete homes I ever have seen. And you also have the love and respect of the man you married. The other day, when you were dressing, he and I had a little talk. I was villain. The 48th Highlanders' Band, under the baton of Lieut. John Slater, is giving the concert for today. Sunday and Monday (Civic Holiday), the Royal Grenadiers' Band will give the concert, and Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, the concert will be given by the Queen's Own Band. All the amusement devices are in full swing, including the deep water bathing. Baseball games will be given every afternoon in the stadium for the entire week. Ferry service will be every few minutes from the foot of Bay street.

ACUTE NERVOUS EXHAUSTION

All Treatments Proved Useless Until He Tried "Fruit-a-tives."

MR. J. S. DELGATY.

R. R. No. 4, Gilbert Plains, Man.

"In the year 1910, I had Nervous Prostration in its worst form; was reduced in weight from 170 pounds to 115 pounds."

"The doctors had no hope of my recovery, and every medicine I tried proved useless until a friend induced me to take 'Fruit-a-tives.'"

"I began to mend almost at once; and after using this fruit medicine for 3 or 4 months, I was back to my normal state of health."

"I never had such good health for twenty years as I have enjoyed the past six years. We are never without a box of 'Fruit-a-tives' in the house."

surprised that he opened his heart to me as he did. I am going to tell you what he said. I had spoken in praise of you, and he replied:

"I am a very fortunate man. I have a very perfect married life. Mrs. Howard was but a very young girl when we were married, and she had a great deal to learn. But now there is no one I know who has more poise, more real kindness of heart, who is a more perfect hostess, or makes her home the restful place she does. When you add to that her accomplishments and her beauty, and that she has given me three lovely boys, you cannot wonder that I say my married life is perfect."

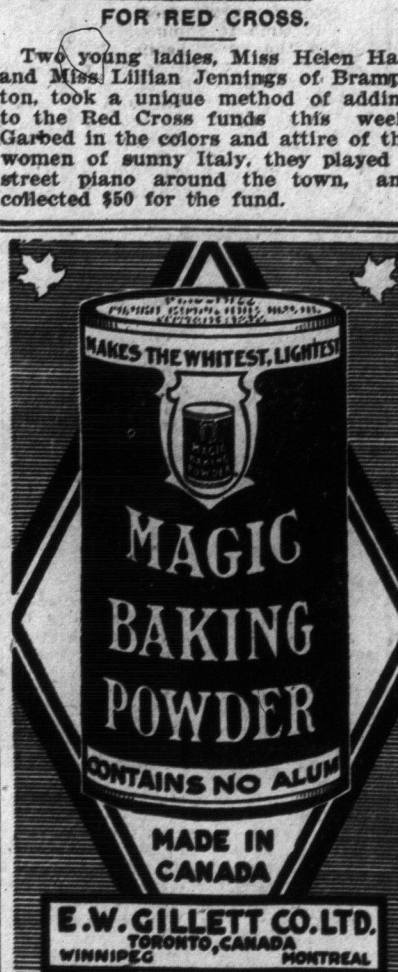

My eyes filled with happy tears as I bade my hostess good-bye. I knew I was changed, but to have George admit that his life with me was perfect gave me such happiness as I never had dreamed of possessing.

FOR RED CROSS.

Two young ladies, Miss Helen Hall and Miss Lillian Jennings of Brampton, took a unique method of adding to the Red Cross funds this week. Gathered in the colors and attire of the women of sunny Italy, they played a street piano around the town, and collected $50 for the fund.

"I Long for the Things He Can't Give Me!"

THIS is what every struggling young man who marries a wealthy girl fears—fears that his wife will long for the things he can't afford to give her.

And in the case of Ruth and Brian Hackett, this was true; Ruth did crave luxuries and the things to which she had been accustomed.

Brian saw this. He knew that his wife was not satisfied with his humble home. And it cut deep. It took all the joy out of his heart.

"Then, Ruth's love was not the real thing!" you will say—for, we all know that real love can flourish in a hovel. But you are wrong! Ruth's love was the real thing. She proves that in the end. How?

"Since last offensive there are many towns and villages obliged to be evacuated. My aunt who lived with another in a little town near Soissons, heroic town, was obliged to leave the town. She left with some animals, some provisions and a few clothings."

"She left heart-broken in thinking that her home will be plundered by the barbarians, and that when she will return home she will only find ruins and ashes."

"My trade as a dressmaker please me very much, and I try my best to learn it to show my gratitude to the people who take care of me, and later to be a good working girl, so to be able to earn my own living."

Music and dancing were features of the evening and refreshments were served by a number of the Garrett and Cross Clubs of St. Stephen's Church. Sergt.-Maj. Proctor was in charge of the proceedings and announced that a meeting will be held shortly at the club, 154 Bay street, when the business of the formation of the women's auxiliary will be transacted. On Monday the men of the first contingent, the women folk will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Sheppard at Keswick.

KEEP CHILDREN WELL DURING HOT WEATHER

Every mother knows how fatal the hot summer months are to small children. Cholera, infantum, diarrhoea, dysentery and stomach troubles are rife at this time and often a precious little life is lost after only a few hours' illness. The mother who keeps Baby's Own Tablets in the house feels safe. The occasional use of the Tablets prevents stomach and bowel troubles, or if the trouble comes suddenly—as it generally does—the tablets will bring the baby safely through. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brookville, Ont.
