MONDAY MORNING, OCT. 14.

Thanksgiving, 1918.

On this fifth thanksgiving of the war the depth of our gratitude will depend a great deal upon what we lay stress on.

Our real gain, and the gain to the whole world, has been in directions which cannot be weighed or measured or counted.

We have to give hearty and joyful thanks for the great mercies which have sustained us in the progress of the war against a mighty and fiendish adversary.

So with a due sense of all these things we may render thanks and do homage to Him on whose shoulder is the Government.

The Glen Road Block.

Residents of Rosedale, consciously or otherwise, are represented by Mr. Carrick and Mr. Sykes in negotiations with the board of control which have had the effect of postponing the opening of the direct car line route across the new Bloor street viaduct till next spring.

Rosedale may rejoice over this temporary triumph and regard it as securing for the exclusive district the real aim, as it appears to be, of all this agitation, a decision against having the grade of Glen road raised to the level of Howard street, and a crossing for the street cars established there.

motors. But the grade crossing is a necessity, for a reason which belongs to the future but is no less valid.

Rosedale people are not too particular about spending the people's taxes, but the unnecessary expense as well as the delay in opening the full service of the viaduct occasioned by the second interference of Mr. Carrick and his friends will not be forgotten to Rosedale by the general public.

The German Reply.

We have been telling our readers since last spring that the Germans would be defeated this fall. In May we held that the German power would be broken at the end of July.

It has taken the Germans a long time to arrive at the same conclusions, but they now face the inevitable. We may perhaps deplore the alacrity with which they wish to dispose of the obnoxious. We had looked for a more imposing funeral.

The reply to President Wilson's note spoken by any decent and God-fearing people might beget sympathy and confidence. But coming from savages who delight in hidden mines and deceitful white flags it affords many grounds for suspicion.

"The German Government believes that the government of the powers associated with the government of the United States also thought as the position taken by President Wilson in his address."

"We are all agreed that there can be no peace obtained by any kind of bargain or compromise with the governments of the central empires, because we have dealt with them already and have seen them deal with other governments that were parties to the struggle at East-Litovsk and Bucharest. They have convinced us that they are without honor and do not intend justice.

Prince Maximilian was appointed chancellor by the kaiser, and it is his government that replies to President Wilson's note. Is President Wilson with the same mind as when he spoke these words? If so, all is well. He went further:

"It would be folly to leave the guarantee [of peace] to the subsequent voluntary action of the governments we have seen destroy Russia and deceive Rumania."

It is not clear that the evacuation of occupied territory includes Alsace and Lorraine, yet in Mr. Wilson's fourteen points he says "the wrong done to France by Prussia in 1871 in the matter of Alsace-Lorraine, which has unsettled the peace of the world for nearly fifty years, should be righted."

There remain the submarine losses and the German fleet. France and Britain will have something to say on this score. Still, if Germany intends an unconditional surrender by her compliance with Mr. Wilson's terms, there will be little more to be done.

HIS THANKSGIVING BIRD

ressed attained in the field, it will soon be found that Marshal Foch holds the real key to peace. President Wilson will probably require some time to compose a response to the German reply, and during this period of literary activity there may be even more definite accomplishments on the western front than the occupation of Leon, which was announced yesterday.

Much Help Needed. A wonderful response was reported from the Ontario Government employment bureau, where help has been pouring in to aid in combating the epidemic.
