The Latest Wheel

We have introduced a whole lot of improvements on the bicycle for 1905. Besides using the best tested material we have exerted our talent in the line of finish and appointments

The 1905 bicycle stands absolutely alone in the history of bicycles-the best yet.

The improved inventions are these :-The perfected Hygienic Cushion Frame, the new Sill's Hygienic Handle Bar.

the improved STLL'S HANDLE BAR Morrow Coaster Brake.

Massey-Harris and Imperial Bicycles have these latest ideas.

SILL'S HANDLE BAR

The Sill's Handle Bar is a new idea. It promotes the comfort of riding by removing the strain upon the arms and hands so that the weight of the body may be thrown forward over the front fork without any possibility of the hands being cramped or the grasp loosened by the vibration that would otherwise be set up were the handle bars rigid. The Sill's Bars take up and absorb the vibration from both directions, because the action of the spring is controlled by a hinged part which directs the movement of the bars in a downwards and forwards tilting motion. The purpose of the spring is to supply a cushion to "give" under the pressure of the arms. The hinged part strengthens the steering post and leaves the operation of steering no less sure and easy than it is with bicycles having rigid handle bars.

ther denay, and by so ading the govern-ment would have an oppolumly of testing public opinion respecting it.e au-unomy bills. I nat would be the pro-per, the manity, and the constitutional course. That would be trusting the peo-ple, but perhaps the government did not trust the people or were afraid to give the electors of the west an opportunity to pass judgment upon the bills and the recent conduct of the men in power. The course of the government in depriving the west of a minister of the interfor was unfair to the house, to the vhola-country, but especially to the people di-rectly and supremely interested in the bills now before the house. Government and Centre Toroato. Mr. Kennedy( Liberal), New West-minster, did not agree with the doctring the a province or the territories were not represented unless they had a cabi-net minister. It was a star upon the year members from the Northwest to say that that part of the country was whol-ly unrepresented because the minister of the interior had resigned. Mr. In-gram, Conservative, of East Elgin, sad the government did, not dare to put up a candidate in Centre Toronto. Why were they giving the Conservatives a bargain-day in that consituency? The reason was plain—the government were afraid to test public opin.on .n that city.

afraid to test public opin.on in that city. Mr. Bennett (Conservative), East Sim-coe, taunted the government with fear to face an election in the Province of Ontario. At the recent election the prime minister pract.cally admitted that his ministers from Ontario were a "rum lot," but he promised to get better men. He tried to bring in Mr. Aylesworth and failed, but there were vacancies now, and why not try Mr. Aylesworth again? Owing to ill-health, which all regretted, the minister of public works (Mr. Sutherland) was absent, and the prime minister knew that he would not return to his place in the house. That left Ontar.o with only two ministers, the benevolent Mr. Paterson, who was not known outside of his own bailiwick, and the lynx-eyed postmaster-general. the benevolent Mr. Paterson, who was not known outside of his own bailwick, and the lynx-eyed postmaster-general, both of whom appeared to be slepping their lives away in the house. Why was not Mr. Hyman appointed to the port-folio of public works? The reason was clear. Mr. Hyman would have to seek reelection, and if he appealed to the electors of London now. Mr. Hyman would disappear from the house. In fact, the only constituencies in Ontario in which the government would have a chance were Hussell and Pr-scott. After brief remarks by Dr. Sproule (Conservative), East Grey, and Col. hughes (Conservative), Victoria-Hall-burton, the discussion ended and the motion to adjourn was declared lost. Mr. Barker (Conservative) of West Hamilton asked the prime minister if the government were in possession of correspondence carried on between them and G. W. Ross, late pre-nier of On-tario, respecting the extension north-ward of the boundaries of that pro-vince. The prime minister repil-d that he was not aware of such correspond-ence, but if there were any it would be brought down.

brought down. Calls It Sentiment.

Calls It Sentiment. The adjournment of debate on the autonomy bill was then resumed by Mr. Scott (Liberal) of West Assinibola. He held that the people of the west were more concerned in having efficient schools and in having sufficient funds for making them so than in the narrow-er issue which had been raised by the bill and debated at considerable length by the house, and which, after all, was largely a matter of sentiment. know there was a separate school sys-tem in the territories. Dr. Sproule quoted from the report of the education department of the terri-tories, which showed that in the first two clauses the separate schools had the option of different readers. Mr. Scott admitted this was so, but main-tained that the provinces were now be-ing given complete autonomy in the matter of text books. Mr. Scott paid the tribute to E. F. Clarke, that while an Orangeman he was broad-minded and fair, and he quoted Mr. Clarke as declaring that the duty of Ontario was to remain silent and allow the measure to become law, so long as the people of the Northwest were satisfied.
