Foreman Brewster of the King William street Fire Hall was painfully injured yesterday while the new combination wagon was being tested. A large fire started, and, Before Chitr Aitchison had taken the precaution to see that everything was all right, the pipes in the wagon were frozen and a hand chemical extinguisher was brought out. It was shaken and the hose being twisted, it exploded, injuring Brewster. Several spectators had a close call and the cylinder was blown into an adjoining yard.

The remains of Henry Hargrove, formerly of the Singer Sewing Machine Company's office here, who died suddenly in Mountberg, N.Y.. were brought here yesterday and interred in Hamilton Cemetery. The cause of death was grip, the doctor's say; his friends say he died of a "broken heart." Hargrove left Hamilton over a year ago, leaving his wife and children behind. About the same time a Miss Huttonworth, who was also employed at the Singer agency, disappeared, and it was supposed at the time that the two eloped.

Mrs. Hargrove did not hear from him till the other day, when she was telegraphed for by the physicians in attendance, as the sick man wished to get her forgiveness. Mrs. Hargrove went and returned with the body.

Yours for Fine Furs and a Happy New Year.

WARD NO 2. VOTE

S. Ackerman, commercial traveler, Belleville, writes: "Some years ago I used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil for Inflammatory Rheumatism, and three bottles effected a complete cure. I was the whole of one summer unable to move without crutches, and every movement caused excruciating pains. I am now out on the road and exposed to all kinds of weather, but have never been troubled with Rheumatism since. I however keep a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Oil on hand, and I always recommend it to others, as it did so much for me."

Alderman John Hallam, on account of his throat trouble, will be unable to take an active part in to-day's campaign. He will go and vote, however, and await the results at his home.

The favorite candidate in the seems to be Mr. F. Dudley and his is counted on as a sure thing.

At the Arlington are registered: J. F. Pillsworth, W. H. Nightingale, F. H. Coombs of Port Hope.

Miss Maud Langman, aged 22 years, died last evening in St. Michael's Hospital, after a lingering illness. Deceased was admitted to the hospital several months ago.

ALD. McMURRICH'S MEETING.

Small-His Proposed

George G. S. Liudsey, voluble, clever and ruby-haired, was addressing the little crowd when the candidate came in. Some one near the door said, "hulto, somebody further down said "huroo," another man ventured on "hurrah," but there wasn't any more poise all together than a cuckoo clock makes in striking. The thirty boys hereupon dropped off to sleep, and it was not until Aid. McMurrich began to tell his infimitable stories about Scotchmen and parrots that they woke up again and there was any real applause.

A Good Opening.

"George McMurrich, when he sets his face to the foe, never retires," made a firstrate beginning. The candidate explained that the afternoon paper which stated that he would retire had telephoned him early in the day, about it, and he had replied: "Not on your sweet life!"

The house enjoyed the body-blows Mayor Shaw received for his alleged breaking of his pledge to retire, an historic moment sworm to by Ned Clarke; for not forcing the street railway to muke concessions; for allowing the C.P.R. to still have in its

What He Would Do.

His own policy, he announced, was to secure the direct car communication between the Union Station was use west end of the city; to get a better car service; better bicycle roads; the readjustment of water rates, and to reorganize the labor bureau.

"This meeting shows he can't me heed!" shouted the speaker, trying to thaw the frozen enthusiusm of the audience.
"It shows Macdonald's going to win," came the answer from the audience, and George Lindsey looked as if instead of words he had been saluted with a pail of water.

Mr. Macdonald here gave an opportunity to the audience to ask questions and they became so warm that at times it looked almost like a riot. One was: "Can you open an investigation if elected?" To this Mr. Macdonald said: "The Counci! will pass resolutions, stating details of fraud perpetrated on the city and a commission will be appointed by the Governor-in-Council." Mr. Sabine, in a few words, raked over the Council and endorsed Mr. Macdonald as the next mayor. He gave several alleged poems while talking and once more referred to the new City Hall as a "white elephant."

Mr. R. H. Rundel endorsed all that the phant."
Mr. R. H. Rundel endorsed all that the former speakers had said.

Another question was asked: "Do you approve of our buildings being let out to pugs and fighters?" and the candidate quietly said he did not.

The market bylaw was aimed at Mr. Macdonald from a man in the gallery, who asked whether it was advisable to vote for it or not: Mr. Macdonald said it was a bylaw and ought to be dealt with by the peonle, but. personally, he opposed it.

The meeting then broke up.

Mr. Macdonald reviewed the charge he made against the Kicly syndicate on June 10, and, he added, "if your own representative, Aid. Graham, were one of the gang, I would hit him too."

Against All Exemptions.

The candidate made a sensation when he brought up the question of tax exemption. He said: "Toronto is blessed in the possession of Massey Hall, and it is a big advantage to the city. When I wanted it on Friday night the price was raised from $100 to $150 for the use. When I get elected I will not tolerate them coming down to the City Hall asking for favors and Massey Hall will receive no exemption from taxation unless the property is turned over the city. If a public institution, it will be treated so and if a private it will be done the same. I will try and make Toronto a Mecca for industries, but if they cannot pay taxes it would be better for them to stay away."

Questions Answered.

Mr. Macdonald here gave an opportunity to the audience to ask questions and they became so warm that at times it looked almost like a riot. One was: "Can you open an investigation if elected?" To this Mr. Macdonald said: "The Council will pass resolutions. Staffing details of frand persolutions. larging of the powers of the salarical actival bodies.

York Township has already made advances in this direction, having in 1897 obtained legislation allowing them complete control of their arrears of taxes, which previously had been returned to the county treasurer. This change has been most beneficial and has wetted the appetite for further simplifying of municipal machinery.
