A LADY OBJECTS
Rev. Dr. McIntyre recently reported to have classified certain groups of religious believers as "modern devils." Among these were the Seventh Day Adventists. A lady who is a member of the Adventist Church protests that she is not a devil of any sort, but an honest believer in the claim that the seventh day is the Sabbath, and she says there are many members of the denomination to which Doctor McIntyre belongs who are neighbors and who will testify that she is in no sense a diabolical creature.

A MYSTERIOUS CASE
Considerable mystery attaches to the finding, by the side of the road at Nungwauk, a well dressed man apparently suffering from the effects of some drug. He was not insensible, but seemed stupefied. A pencil and carpenter's square were found in his pockets. Brought to St. John, the man was taken to the General Public Hospital after being examined by Dr. T. D. Walker, and at the institution volunteered his name to be Robert Bradshaw, twenty-eight. Further than that he refused to talk. The man's condition was unchanged at the hospital today. He has refused to elaborate on his statement last night, and has not said where he lives or who his friends are.

MONCTON GIRL TO WED MILLIONAIRE

Miss Marion V. MacKenzie To Be Bride of Joseph Thayer Gilman of Boston

A Boston special despatch says:—"A romance which began in Moncton two years ago, when Joseph Thayer Gilman, a millionaire car manufacturer, met Miss Marion V. MacKenzie, will develop into a wedding within a few days. "When the steamer from St. John arrived here yesterday Mr. Gilman was at the wharf with taxis to meet Miss MacKenzie. They drove to the city hall and filed notice of marriage intentions, as required by law. Five days must elapse before the wedding. "Mr. Gilman, who is a widower, met his bride-to-be when he was on a vacation in New Brunswick. Since that time he has spent two vacations there."

A LESSON FROM SUSSEX

No Town of Equal Population Beats It For Optimism

A visitor to Sussex said to the Times today that perhaps in no town of equal population is the spirit of optimism so apparent as in Sussex, which he found to be a veritable beehive of industry and progress. He found houses, stores and warehouses being erected. The well-shaded streets, some of them well paved and all of them well kept, attracted his attention, as did the fact that most of the houses are fronted by a green lawn with plenty of open space around them. The houses are well painted, presenting a clean and inviting appearance, and the visitor was impressed with the thought that Sussex is an ideal place in which to live. He found the public school to be one of the most up-to-date of educational institutions in the province, with facilities for teaching domestic science, manual training, gardening, music and all the arts that give the boys and girls a fair start in life.

The visitor called at the office of the Kings County Record, and was at once impressed with a feeling that in J. D. McKenna he had struck one of the real live wires of the town, a booster who believed that there is nothing too good for Sussex.

Among the new buildings being erected, and many of them are of concrete blocks, the large store of W. B. McKay & Son, which is nearing completion, is an exceptionally fine structure. It is built of concrete, and will add much to the appearance of the business section. It has a frontage of fifty feet and a depth of one hundred and ten feet, and is two stories in height. It is exceptionally well lighted, provided with all the new fixtures, including silent salesmen and a proper cash system. Its handsome offices, plate glass windows and provision for the various departments of a thoroughly equipped business house impressed the visitor. The new store will be an ornament to Sussex.

The Times informant says that there are evidently few, if any, knoekers in Sussex, and that the outlook promises an even busier season next year. Many commercial men have expressed a desire to make Sussex their headquarters, and it is expected to lead to a more active building campaign.

GOES INSANE AT SEA

Young Sailorman Had Shipped at This Port

Taken suddenly insane at sea Erwin Hloock of the schooner Catherine, Captain Wilkie, which arrived in port at Bangor on Wednesday from Turks Island, is now detained there pending insanity from J. B. Keating, British vice consul at Portland. Honck belongs in Brooklyn, N. Y., but was shipped out of St. John, N. B., on the schooner's outward voyage. He was all right at the time the vessel was loading, and it was not until the passage to Bangor that he developed signs of insanity. He was watched carefully by Captain Wilkie and the men. He suffered from convulsions and yelled so that he kept the crew awake on their watch below. His condition is attributed to the fact that after a period of heavy drinking he was deprived of liquor at sea. He is nineteen years old.

MARY ONE ON THE BENCH TODAY

Magistrate Ritchie is vindicated. His theories are proved true ones; his ideas of moral reform (assisted by a dose of jail) have been shown to be right. His contention that punishment should be curative too has received a complete and fabbergasting chorus of ayes. For this morning there wasn't a single drunk on the docket in police court—not one. His Honor looked triumphant, and shot an I-told-you-so look at the reporters' table. At the same time there was a disappointed gleam in his eye. He missed his morning lecture on the evils of rum.

Possibly His Honor would contend that his severe sentences on habitual drunkards, averaging from two to three months in jail, have had a salutary effect, and that people are afraid to get drunk in St. John any more. There are others, however, who would explain the phenomenon by saying that His Honor has every self-lubricator in town inside the jail looking out. They contend that until some of these are turned loose there won't be any more drunkenness in St. John. His Honor would perhaps reply that when those in jail now get out they'll be so afraid of another two months that they'll make a bee line for the county clubboose or Adjutant Cummings' office to sign the pledge.

That's as may be. The one fact that can't be blinked is that not a single, solitary, beef-faced, sad-complexioned gentleman wofy-faced in the police court this morning charged with being drunk.

IS IDENTIFIED
The man found on the railway tracks near Fairville yesterday and who died on the way to the General Public Hospital was identified this morning as William J. Ryan of Millinocket, Me., until a few days ago an inmate of the jail. The identification was made by Turney Clifford. He was released from the jail on Wednesday and it is believed that he may have been trying to make his way to his home.
