BAY ROBERTS, FRIDAY, SEPT. 7, 1917.

Fatal Accidents

Will any amount of punishment bring back to life the person who is killed by the criminal carelessness of others? Will any fines or payments imposed or compensations made atone for the loss of life? The one killed cannot come back to fight the wrong committed against him. His legal representatives and the representatives of the people should attend to that. No amount of money offered, and no amount of sympathy, good as these things may be, should be allowed to stand in the way of having the strictest enquiries held or the greatest protection afforded to the lives of people.

The 67 miners who lost their lives at Sydney a few weeks ago went down into that mine quite innocent of the dangers that lurked there. That mother who, a few days ago, took her two little children and went out on the public highway was quite unaware of the automobile that was, in a few seconds, to crush out her life and the life of her little child in such an awful and tragic manner.

The driver of the car has been arrested, and an enquiry is being held. We trust that every detail will be considered and that Justice will be done.

We in this section have fortunately so far escaped serious harm, but this has been due to Providential intervention rather than to the enforcement of the law by those appointed and paid a salary to see that certain regulations are complied with.

Enough lives are being sacrificed on the blood-stained fields of Europe without having lives needlessly sacrificed through the carelessness of drivers or the indifference of public officials.
