ST. JOHN STAR.

ST. JOHN, N. B., AUGUST 20, 1901.

THE STAR.

The Star claims to print more news of special interest to St. John people than any other evening paper. A careful reading of the columns of this issue will show that while prominence is given to local news the news of the province, the dominion and the world in general is not neglected, but set forth in brief form, so that the daily reader of the Star is not left in ignorance regarding any important matter. The Star should be in every home in this city.

CANADIAN GROWTH.

A young Canadian who lives in Buffalo states in a letter to the Times of this city his views on the question why the population of Canada does not more rapidly increase. He believes it is due to the fact that there is a lack of opportunity for young men, who have to wait in too many cases until they are 45 or 50 years old before they are considered competent to fill positions of importance. He cites this instance:

There were six boys who graduated with me from a certain Canadian high school. Of the seven, six are now in the United States enjoying incomes from $2,000 to $5,000 a year, while the seventh, who has just as good natural abilities, is receiving about $15 per week in Canada. This is only one instance. Buffalo alone has a population of 25,000 Canadians, and there are 5,000,000 of them in the United States. That is the reason Canada doesn't grow.

The facts stated by this young man are suggestive, but they do not state the whole case. He omits the very significant fact that in the United States, with its great industries, there are more and greater opportunities for the young man. It is true there are more young men also, but there is vastly greater wealth, and a more complex development of industry, offering great rewards to clever men. Possibly there is too much conservatism in Canada in the sense he indicates, and that greater opportunities should be thrown open to young men. However, the tendency is in that direction. When the capital that has for a century been flowing into the United States for investment is diverted to the development of Canadian resources the opportunity of our young men will have come. For the present we must be content with the slower methods, and make the most of the chances available.

A NOBLE RECORD.

In these days when so much is said and written about the darker side of human life, it is refreshing and inspiring to turn aside and consider some of the more beneficent aspects of our modern existence. We read so much about crime and depravity and misery that there is perhaps a tendency toward pessimism in respect to the future. But, under the froth and foam and driftwood of life, how steadily the strong currents of worthy and high endeavor, bearing the race to higher levels of thought and action.

These remarks are suggested by an address delivered in Melrose, Mass., a few days ago, by Representative C. H. Adams, chairman of the ways and means committee of the Massachusetts legislature. He was addressing an audience in the Free Baptist church, upon the reformatory and charitable institutions of the state. We read a great deal in the newspapers about crime in Massachusetts, and the record is certainly black enough. But over against it Mr. Adams presents a more pleasing picture, which we are perhaps too apt to overlook because there is less said about it. Mr. Adams said, and it must be remembered that he was speaking only of what the state itself does, with no reference whatever to private beneficence:

"The commonwealth spends $1,500,000 a year in reformatory work, and a million in charitable. In its work for the children, for the wayward and the unfortunate, Massachusetts leads the whole country. Its charitable institutions are the best constructed, best managed and most successful in the United States. The prisons and reformatory institutions are models."

"The school for girls in Lancaster, where hundreds of girls have been reformed and trained; the school for boys at Westboro, where thousands of wayward boys have been benefited; the reformatory at Concord, and the state farm at Bridgewater, are some of the splendid institutions supported by the state and managed by boards of able men and women, who serve the state without pay and at great sacrifice."

"The great state hospital at Tewksbury, formerly the Tewksbury almshouse, cared for 4,000 people last year. This is the institution which Gen. Butler made notorious 20 years ago, and which the state, to overcome that great scandal, has made absolutely spotless. New buildings, costing half a million dollars, have been put up. The management is of the highest standard."

"Besides the great normal schools for the preparation of teachers without cost for tuition, the state maintains at Amherst the State college, where the humblest boy may obtain a college education without paying a dollar.

"The state takes the blind children and sends them to the most famous institution for the blind in the world, and pays board, clothing and tuition, and it has recently begun the work of educating and training the adult blind at their homes."

"Every deaf and dumb child is sent by the state to some great institution, employing the highest skill, where they are trained and taught."

"Under state law, no child is permitted to remain in any almshouse or state institution. They are placed in homes throughout New England, where they are reared in the family, sent to school and to church, and away from their original unfortunate surroundings. They grow up respected, honest, self-supporting men and women. The carefully kept records of these children show the most glorious results in upright citizenship. This method is the 'Massachusetts system,' written about and praised by writers of the world over."

"Massachusetts is the first state to establish a home for consumptives and to try the experiment of public expense of during consumption. At the great sanatorium at Rutland hundreds have been benefited and great numbers fully cured. The example of this state is a year being followed by New York state. Boston is also building a similar hospital, and the fame of the institution at Rutland is everywhere."

"Massachusetts is the first state to establish a home for the scientific treatment of insanity. The institution at Foxboro is being finely conducted. No one knows just yet how successful it may become. But all thoughtful men agree that it is worth all the cost to study and investigate the great problem of how to treat the unfortunate drunkard. Massachusetts may well be the first to do it."

"The state gives $300,000 a year as relief for soldiers and their families, which is a sum greater than that given by all the other states in the union combined."

Mr. Adams praised the recent legislation for the care of the insane, by which the state assumes the care of all insane paupers, assuring to the most unfortunate uniform care, the highest skill and most expert treatment in the best institutions.

DEATH OF HARRIS ALLAN.

One of St. John's Best Known Residents—His Business Career.

The death of Harris Allan, which took place last evening, after a long illness, will be heard with regret by a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

Mr. Allan was a son of the late Thomas Allan, of the old firm of Harris & Allan, and was born in this city in 1851. Harris Allan in his earlier years was employed by the firm of Harris & Allan in mechanical as well as other lines, and in this way laid a solid foundation for an active business life. For many years he was associated with his senior brother, Thomas G. Allan, in the foundry business at Fredericton. On the withdrawal of Thomas G. in 1881, to form the firm of Allan Bros., Mr. Harris Allan conducted the Fredericton business for some time on his own account, and later on took into partnership the late James Tibbitts, who subsequently bought out the entire business, which is now conducted by Mr. Allan, Thompson and Tibbitts.

Mr. Allan was a man of high character, and his business career was one of success. He was a member of the St. John exhibition, and was a founder, machinist, etc., on Water street, which he continued until the decline of wooden shipping caused his withdrawal from this field of labor.

Mr. Allan was active in civic politics in Fredericton, and also in this city. In recent years he was well known as the mechanical superintendent at the St. John exhibition. Mr. Allan was an active member of St. Andrew's Society, a Mason and Knight Templar.

Mr. Allan was twice married. His first wife, who was a native of Exeter, and of three children by this marriage, but one, J. Barry Allan, now of Fredericton, survives. His second wife was a daughter of the late Capt. A. M. Allan, and she was a devoted wife and mother. No children of this marriage survive. The bereaved widow has the deep sympathy of a host of friends, who were endeared to her late husband by his hearty manliness and sturdy Scotch character.

There was a very large attendance this afternoon at the funeral of the late Harris Allan. Members of the Knights Templars walked in the procession as mourners, and the pall was borne by the stepsons of the deceased. At a quarter of three o'clock service was conducted at his late residence, 56 Coburg street, by the Rev. Charles Schofield, of St. John, and Canon Deane, after which the body was taken for interment to Fernhill cemetery. There were many beautiful floral tributes.

VESTIGE OF HATE.

Is What Quebec Catholics Call the Formula of the Coronation Oath.

The Roman Catholic clergy of Quebec city will send the following petition to London, asking for a change in the coronation oath:

"His Honor the Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, Minister of Colonies:—

"We regret that notwithstanding the energetic protests of the Catholic subjects of his majesty you persist in retaining in the formula of the royal oath the words which are contrary to the Catholic faith, as also to the spirit of justice and liberty which we have a right to expect from the people of England."

"This sectarian intolerance, dishonorable to England, cannot but alienate the hearts of a great number of the subjects of his majesty. In the name of the Catholics of Canada, and in particular of the members of the parish of (name of church designated), Quebec, we declare our protest against the formula of the royal oath, and demand of the government of his majesty the abolition of this vestige of hate and religious discord."

CONSUMPTION IN ONTARIO.

TORONTO, Aug. 19.—The fight against consumption in Ontario, it is hoped by the provincial health officer, is at last beginning to tell in the vital statistics. During July of this year municipalities containing 91 per cent of the population of the province registered only 123 deaths from consumption, as compared with 284 recorded in July, 1900, by municipalities containing 97 per cent of the population. A small but noteworthy decline has steadily followed in the wake of improved methods of isolation and anti-spitting regulations.
